PREFACE.

After an interval of two years, we again bring out a new volume of the Records of the American Catholic Historical Society. Beginning with this year a volume will be published annually in four quarterly parts, in March, June, September and December.

By this change we will be able to issue double the quantity heretofore published, and will have it in our subscribers hands, much more promptly.

This is rendered possible by the growing interest in historical research, and the appreciation which has been shown of the value of the Society's work in this direction, as evidenced by a largely increased membership.

The Society is not responsible for any opinions expressed or any statements of facts made in the various papers published.

COMMITTEE ON PUBLICATION.

THE Gallitzin Memorandum Book.

From 1804—1824.

PREPARED FROM THE ORIGINAL FOR THE

AMERICAN CATHOLIC HISTORICAL SOCIETY OF PHILADELPHIA.

[By Rev. Thomas C. Middleton, D.D., O. S. A.]

The Memorandum Book of Father Gallitzin—the subject of this paper—contains the records, though not in complete form, of the ecclesiastical and financial transactions of this missionary, during some twenty years of his residence in Pennsylvania, in the mission district in Cambria County, known as Loretto.

Before presenting his transcription of the Memorandum Book, the writer has judged it well to briefly state the chief incidents in the life of Father Gallitzin, those especially that will aid the reader to understand many at least of the entries—taken from it, that are here published for the first time.

Demetrius Gallitzin, so well known in after days as the Apostle of the Alleghanies, was born December 22, 1770, of Demetrius, Prince Gallitzin, or de Gallitzin, and his spouse, Amelia, countess of Schmettau.

His father, who besides being chamberlain and privy counselor of the famous Czarina Catharine II, had for many years represented the Russian Court in France, was at the time of our hero's birth Catharine's embassador at The Hague, the capital city of The Netherlands.

At the age of 22, the young Prince Demetrius was sent by his father to complete his education by travel in the United States. This was in 1792. Under the name of Augustine Schmet, a contraction of his mother's name, which, in America, became Smith*. Demetrius landed in Baltimore and there made the acquaintance of the Right Rev. John Carroll, the first, and at that time, the only Catholic prelate in the country.

The many sterling qualities of heart and mind in the illustrious youth seemed to have made a deep impression on the Bishop, and, through the grace of God, it was not long before the descendant of the princes de Gallitzin was led to embrace the ecclesiastical state.

In 1795, Demetrius Gallitzin having, now during the three intervening years of his residence in Baltimore, completed his course of theological studies, under the direction of the Sulpitian Father, the Rev. François Charles Nagot, was on St. Joseph's Day, March 19, ordained—this was the second ordination in the United States, by Bishop Carroll, to the holy order of priesthood, and shortly after was sent by the same venerable prelate to Conewago—an old time Jesuit mission in Adams County, in Pennsylvania, so as there to assist the resident rector, the Rev. Paul Dominic Erntzen in his care over the spiritual wants of the Faithful.

It was during his residence at Conewago—his home until 1799, that Father Gallitzin formed the project of establishing a colony of his fellow members in the Faith, of those especially, who for one reason or another had left their native firesides in the Old World to cross the ocean and seek asylum in the land of the free.

To this end Father Gallitzin purchased at different times, not far from Conewago, precisely in Cambria County, in one of the most fertile districts of Pennsylvania, a large tract, or perhaps more properly, a series of tracts of highly eligible land,†

* According to Fr. Lambing, Father Gallitzin was known as Augustine Smith until an act of the Legislature of Pennsylvania passed Dec. 5, 1809, enabled him to resume his proper name. (See Catholic Historical Researches, VOL. III., p. 60.)

† His biographers place the amount of land that was purchased at various times by Fr. Gallitzin at 20,000 acres and upwards. (See Catholic Historical Researches, Pittsburgh, Pa., VOL. III., p. 64.

part of which was under tillage but the by far greater portion still in all the primeval and rugged grandeur of its mountains, hills and forests.

This land he rented or sold outright to his Catholic fellow settlers on easy terms.

Here amidst the Alleghanies was planted his well-beloved colony, to which, in honor of the Mother of God, he gave the title of Loretto.*

The outlay of money needed for the opening of this colony, the purchase of land, the bringing it under tillage and, in general, for the promotion of the welfare of the new settlers, was exceedingly heavy. Father Lambing places the expenses that were incurred by Father Gallitzin during this period of his life at the figure of $150,000 and upwards.†

Not having sufficient ready money at command, to cover his indebtedness, Father Gallitzin was constrained to meet his creditors with notes and mortgages. In 1803, he was already in debt to the amount of $20,000.‡

Should other evidence be required of the financial straits in which Father Gallitzin found himself entangled, the reader of his Memorandum Book cannot fail but notice the very many entries therein that relate to his financial burdens. As a rule the entries are made in the following style, namely, on such or such a day —here Father Gallitzin gives the date—he "assumed," this is his way of stating it, "the debt" of so and so, and then he sets down the amount of his indebtedness. Here are some

* We may here note that the term "Loretto" is a corruption of Loreto, a city in the Marches of Ancona, now known as Piceno, on the eastern seaboard of the Papal territories in Italy. At Loreto is the Holy House of Nazareth—the Santa Casa of the Italians, in which the "Word was made flesh." The Very Rev. Peter Richard Kenrick, at the time vicar general of the diocese of Philadelphia, and now Archbishop of St. Louis, published, (Phila., 1841), an admirable little sketch of this celebrated sanctuary with the title of The Holy House of Loretto. The proper spelling of Loreto, at least in its native home is with one t, and not as is so commonly the case in English works, with two.

‡ For a somewhat detailed statement of his indebtedness, see the documents referred to in the Bibliographical Notes at the end of this paper.

samples of this form of entry, that I have taken at random from the pages of the book, namely, "assuming debt [of Hugh McCoy] to Jno Glass $14"; on "Sept. 7 Assumed Debt [of same] to Kilpatrick $8.50"; "Assumed debt [of same] to Mrs. flanigan [sic] $53.94"; on "July 4 assumed [debt of James C Maguire, sometime after 1812,] to Geo. Mulhollan $13.80"; [in none of the above entries is any year indicated;] "Bond to Pat[ric]k Kerrigan Oct. 1, 1809, $500.; "Note to ditto Dec. 20 1811, $359.40"; "Bal[an]ce to me by Assuming Debt [of Patrick Kerrigan, some time after Mar. 3, 1813,] of $1000 to Mr. Murphy $8.64"; "Ap[ri]l 19th 1817 due Corn[elius] McDonald on Bond [apparently of Rachael White] $400.37cts"; on "June 26 1815 assumed [debt apparently of John Feltz to St[anislaus] Warthon $24.00"; "debt [apparently of Thomas B. Durbin, before 1814,] to Judge Robert $35.00"; "feb. 10 1824 [assumed debt] to Wilson for [Robert Burgoon] $10"; "assumed to Griffith for ditto $11.62½ cts"; "ditto to Jno Murray for ditto $24.05," while on page 48, is the following memorandum of a financial transaction, namely, "Nov. 25th 1814 Settled with John Feltz I gave him four Notes One Note for $100.00 cts payable Jan. 1 1814 One do. for $100.00 cts. [payable] Jan. 2 1814 One do. for $90.00 cts. [payable] Jan 3 1814 One do. for $100.00 cts. [payable] Aug. 1 1813."

In contracting so heavy a responsibility, Father Gallitzin does not seem to have acted rashly. Had law and equity prevailed, the immense fortune of his father would in due time have been his.

The Gallitzins were of the noblest and wealthiest families of Eastern Europe. The historic Gedemine, or Gedymin, a Lithuanian noble of the XIII century is said to have been their ancestor, and their family had supplied rulers to Poland, Hungary and Bohemia.

On the death of his father, on March 16, 1803, all the property went to the mother, in virtue of a marriage contract, made August 14, 1768, as life estate, and, on her death, she died April 27, 1806, should have gone to their son Demetrius principally, their only other child, his sister, being allowed by Russian law, one tenth of the real and one eighth of the personal property.*

But the illustrious convert had not reckoned on either the malignant hostility of Russian tribunals, or the treacheries of so-called friends and kinsmen. The emperor Alexander deprived Father Gallitzin of the whole of his father's estates "because he was a Catholic and a priest." †

Of his father's wealth Father Gallitzin received comparatively nothing. Hence the struggles against an unkind fortune which burdened the greater part—some 40 years, of the life of this good and most exemplary missionary.

At Loretto, on Wednesday May 6, 1840, the Rev. Demetrius Augustine Gallitzin returned his soul to his Creator.‡

THE MEMORANDUM BOOK. I now begin the description of Father Gallitzin's Memorandum Book. No where in it have I found any word or term indicative of its contents. It has neither heading or title. Part of it is a register, part a journal, and still another part a house-book.

So in default of perhaps a better term, I have applied to it the title of Memorandum Book and as such it will be referred to in the following pages.

First. As to its condition, it may be said, that the book itself is a small volume, bound in leather, containing, at least in its present state, 113 leaves, each measuring 3¾ inches wide and 6 inches long. But so many of the leaves have been separated from their binding, that it is highly problematical whether we now have the book in a complete state or not. In fact, at the very beginning of the book, we meet evidences of its imperfect condition. Five leaves there have certainly been cut away, leaving the mutilated stubs as the only witnesses of the disappearance of ten pages of perhaps valuable historical matter.

* See the authorities given in the Bibliographical Notes at the end of this paper.

† In a Letter, dated Loretto, Oct. 12th, 1836, which Fr. Gallitzin wrote to James N. Causten, Esq., of Washington, D. C., he relates the bigoted antagonism of the Emperor, his own struggles against adversity and his bitter disappointment at being defrauded of his property. For the documents relating to the emperor's action and the trickery of Fr. Gallitzin's relatives, see the Bibliographical Notes at the end of this paper.

‡ For the benefit of those who wish further information relating to the subject of this sketch, I have added to this paper a list of all the authorities, with which I am acquainted, that have any bearing on the topic.

In its original state, the book was unpaged, but in order to refer the more easily to the several passages in the same, a later hand has numbered the leaves—in lead pencil, so that, as the book now stands, we find in it 226 pages in all. It is this paging that has been adopted in the various transcripts that have been made from the volume, that is here given to the public.

Secondly. As to the character of its contents, it seems that the book was at first employed by Fr. Gallitzin as a kind of church register, and gradually as a record book of all sorts of memoranda. This appears from the very varied character of its contents. As samples, I note (1) the names of the Easter communicants in 1810; (2) the names of those who complied with the church precept of confession, during the Easter Seasons of 1811, and (3) of 1813, and (4) the record of the names and ages of all who were confirmed by Bishop Egan of Philadelphia in 1811.*

In still another part of his book, Fr. Gallitzin has set down the names of some 115 persons, who had subscribed various sums of money apparently for church purposes. So much then for the entries of a distinctively ecclesiastical character.

* These four lists of names have been published by the American Catholic Historical Society, and consequently will not be re-published here. (See the Records of the Society for 1891, Vol. III., pp. 399-415.) With regard to these published lists, I may here observe, that from a careful comparison with the original manuscript, I have found only two names omitted in them, namely (1) "Elizabeth Luther," who should be among the Easter communicants for 1810, and (2) "Mary Ann Will aged 26 years", who was confirmed by Bishop Egan, in 1811, and one name imperfectly printed among the confirmed in 1811; this is Elizabeth Cooper, so it reads in the original, while in the printed list it stands as "Eli Cooper". The number of those who went to Holy Communion at Easter, in 1810, is 220; to their confession at Easter, in 1811, 436; ditto in 1813, 585, (I do not count those whose names are crossed out in both the original MS. and the published lists, otherwise the numbers would be 439 and 596), while those who were confirmed apparently number 191.

As to the contents of the book that relate to worldly affairs, it is safe to say that the by far larger number of the entries record purely business transactions for the several years between 1804 and 1824.

DATE OF CONTENTS. In this book, there is a very evident lack of dates. Occasionally Fr. Gallitzin set down the time—the year—in which something or other occurred, but by far more frequently, only the day and month, or maybe the month alone. Thus it often becomes a matter of sheer guess work for the reader to determine at just what time a given transaction took place.

In his account with Pittsburg Bank (p. 2) all that appears is the following, namely—

"To Pittsburgh Bank Ap[ri]l 16	$500
pd on June 16	30
Jan 1813	100
Oct 1812	120
March	30
May 1815 pd off in full."

The earliest date I have come across in this Memorandum Book is July 1, 1804 (p. 225,) on which day Fr. Gallitzin purchased some paper for the sum of $2, and the latest dates—two in number, both of the same day, are in a Mr. Howel's account (p. 139,) where Father Gallitzin credits himself with having paid, on Feb. 10, 1824, $10 to a certain Wilson, and $6.02¾ to John Feltz, (not "Felz" as it has been miswritten,) both on order of the said Howel. These years are the extreme limits of the memoranda, but the far larger number of the business entries are for the years between 1813–20.

MISCELLANEOUS ENTRIES. In order to show the very miscellaneous character of the contents of this book, I give here a list—merely a partial one, of some of the parties, with whom Father Gallitzin opened separate accounts, reserving for subsequent pages ampler selections from the same. With the names, I add a few of the entries belonging to the accounts. Here is the list, namely—

(1) with "Pittsburgh Bank," for money loaned. (2) J. Brand to whom he sold twenty acres of land for $200, and boards. (3) Frank Cristy, for "Towlinnen" [sic] at 33 cents a yard; plowing 4½ days at $1 a day; "blue Nankin coat" for $2; "12 lbs. of meat at 3 ct=40 [sic] cents; 2 Bushels of Buckwheat for 80 cents; "working on the Road $1.40"; "to work for 3 Weeks $4.50;" "for Washing 37½ cents. (4) James C. Maguire for flour sold to him in December 1812. (5) Hugh McCoy. (For his account see further on.) One whole page (p. 23) is taken up with grain and flour accounts with divers parties. (6) John Feltz whom Father Gallitzin on Nov. 25, 1814, gave four notes amounting to $390. (See ante) (7) James L. Maguire who owes Father Gallitzin $8.36, on June 28, 1813. (8) Richard Maguire to whom Father Gallitzin owes $5.70½, on July 27, 1818. (9) Catharine McHugh for sundry items as Bacon, Bricks, and "one Lot [of land] in Loretto" for $20.00. (10) Ruth Gorman for Bacon and Potatoes. (11) Catharine Warthon, elsewhere referred to as "Widow Warthon," for very many sundries. (Further on will be found selections from this account.) (12) John Boiles who on Nov. — 1821, gets from Father Gallitzin "One Side Sp. Soal," which seems to mean split sole leather, weighing 14 pounds at 33 cents a pound, and again "one side ditto" weighing 20 pounds. (13) In July, 1814, Frank Cristy makes many purchases, among them, "2 Bushels of Wheat" at $1.25 a bushel; "1 pair of Shoes" for $2.00; on December 27, 3½ yards of Cloth at $2 a yard; "Plow Irons" for $3.50; 3½ yards of "Towlinnen" [sic] at 37½ cents a yard; cloth at $2.25 a yard; and 2½ yards of linsey at $1 a yard. (14) on Sept. 7, 1814, Father Gallitzin writes "Settled with D. Buckley due him $5.00 & the tenth of 51½ B[ushels] of Wheat at $1.50 per Bushel." (15) In 1814, Father Gallitzin sells John McConnell some "fulled Linsey"; on Jan. — 1815, 4 yards of Cloth at $2 a yard; lining 2½ yards for $1.25; 2 Cotton Shirts 5½ yards for $2.75; 3¾ yards of Tow at 33 cents a yard; 2¾ yards of "linnen" [sic] at 40 cents a yard; 2 yards of "fulled linsey" at $1 a yard; stockings $1.50; 1¾ yards "linnen" [sic] 50 cts. 87½cts.; and "1 pair Shoes" for $2.

(16) On Jan. 18, 1815, James Ryan owes Father Gallitzin $7.32. (17) In 1817, with Mr. Howel, in whose account I notice the following entries, viz.: in May for plowing and harrowing 2 days $4; "June 3 and 4 [1818] two days horses & plow $2.00"; Dec. 18, 1818, to constable $3.19 and in May, 1819, "Cash to constable $10.31; July 5, 1819, a bull to Robert Burgoon $10.00; to the same for Dr. Dorm, elsewhere written "Dorman," $8; in 1821, "2 Books $1.25 and "Cash lent for Journey to Phil[adelphia] $12.00."

(18) In 1819, Father Gallitzin pays Thomas Foley "for printing," ten dollars in cash; "hay Oats & Potatoes" to the value of $7.25; "4 B[ushels] of Oats" at 62½ cents a bushel =$2.50; "hay 500 Ct. [hundredweight] at 62½ cents a hundred $3.12½"; "3 B[ushels] of Oats at 62½ cents a bushel =$1.87½, and "3 B[ushels] of Potatoes at 50 cts. a bushel =$1.50. (19) One-half page of this book (p. 143) is taken up with accounts with a certain Kerrigan, for "cutting & hauling Logs," in 1815. Kerrigan, it appears, was paid wholly in kind, as in Oats, at various times at 60 cents a bushel; on febr. 27," in Meat at 15 cents a pound; on March 20, in Bacon at the same price; on "Apl. 9, 1815 to Pet[er] Kerrigan Jun. Plow $10.00"; on "May 10, P. Kerrigan Sen. 5 B[ushels] Potatoes" at 50 cents a bushel; on the same day 1½ bushels of Buckwheat at 67 cents, and 3 Bushels of oats at 50 cents a bushel. (20) In his accounts with Archibald Cristy, for 1817–18, (p 15,) I notice that besides giving him various sums of money, Father Gallitzin pays him also in "Leather" worth $9.; ten dollars worth of "Orders upon Mr. Seely;" a "Straw hat" worth $1.25, and, on "July 25th, pays to the constable" $7.46½ cents. (21) On page 152, Father Gallitzin notes that "Durbin worked from Apl. 2 1818 untill [sic] May 46 days at 75 cts per day $34.50 cts."

Following this is nearly a page of accounts with Durbin. On Nov. 6, 1817, Father Gallitzin pays B[?] B. Durbin $52.20; assumes a debt of his to Jno. McHugh of $25.00; another to Luke Maguire Esq. for certain parties named, of $42.90; a third to McHugh of $26.81, and a fourth to P. Burg[oon] of $3.20.

Among the other payments to Durbin, I select the following, viz: "Soal [sic] Leather 9¾ pounds $3.90"; "¼ Upper [leather] $2.00"; "One side harness [leather?] $4.50"; "Tobacco, 31 cents," and ½ Ct. [hundredweight] $1.75"; on "febr. 10 1818 Order for $30 to Murray"; "Tea" 50 cents; 2 bushels of Spring Wheat at $2.25 a bushel, and 30 bushels of Seed Oats at 50 cents a bushel.

On May 7th, Father Gallitzin "entered Judgement [sic] for Durbin $111," and, on "May 14th 1818, sells him "10 lb Veal" at 5 cents a pound. (22) In his accounts (p. 154) headed "Archibd Christy [elsewhere and more frequently "Cristy"] Dr. to D. A. Gallitzin," is a memorandum that "Peter Christy began again Sept. 17, 1818," and, then besides several entries of money paid to the said Archibald Christy, follow such others as, "Nov. 10th Order for Leather $7.20"; "Peter for one pair Shoes $2.00; 2¾ yds. of Cloth at $2 a yard; "Linnen" [sic] $2.50; "Salt ½ Bushel" $1.50; "Weaving 11 yds at 10 cents" a yard $1.10; to Silas Moore $19.00; 2¾ lbs. Bacon at 14 cents a pound and 7 lbs beef at 10 cents; "2 Pair Shoes" $4.00; "flour 1 Ct. 2½ lb. $4.10, and "to Peter 5 yds of Linnen [sic] 40 cts $2.00." (23) On March 25, 1815, Father Gallitzin sets down the receipt of $187.00 from "Bedford Bank," and then enters certain payments he made as follows, namely: paid Lender $50.00; "travelling expenses" $4.00; 3 days riding at 75 cts" $2.25; "knife board Copras [copperas?] L[amp?] Black $4.45," and "Cash remaining $126.25.

These 23 selections will afford the reader a pretty fair idea of the character of the business entries in this book. Besides these one will encounter every here and there such incongruous items as recipes for various ailments, registers of Mass obligations, payments to physicians and constables and inventories of personal and household property. Here are the recipes and something that seems to be a direction for weavers.

The recipe (p. 20) is as follows,—a "Pilontary of Spain for toothache Coltsfoot or wild ginger for stomach blue flag root to kill toothache", while the weaver's directions (ibid.) are:

"40 lb Cotton 2 Doz to a lb=80 Doz
1 Doz of flax & 1 Doz of Cotton makes 2 yds
80 Doz of flax at 33 cts $26.40."

With these brief excerpts from the book, the reader, it is conjectured, will have been duly prepared for longer selections from the same. Should he be tempted to marvel at the apparently confused character of the entries, be it known that throughout the volume Father Gallitzin has set down his memoranda in just whatever part of the book came handiest at the time. This was his labor-saving method. Thus the account that he had with the Pittsburg Bank during the years 1812–13 and '15, is found on page 2; this is followed immediately on the next page by a memorandum of his indebtedness, Dec. 8, 1814, of $3.75, to Thomas Cantwell; on the following page is put down the number of bushels of wheat—123, that were threshed during September, October and June of certain years, that have not been named; the next page is blank, and the fifth page begins with the list of those who were confirmed by Bishop Egan in 1811. Moreover as the leaves in this book have been neither lined, nor paged, it is not possible to discover which part of it is really top, bottom, beginning or end.

As an instance, let the reader take page 199. On this page ends the list of Easter penitents for 1813. This is clear enough. But to understand the pages that follow, one must turn the book upside down, and then going back three leaves, he will discover that the six intervening pages are taken up with "Tanning" accounts for 1815–19. And so on goes this same topsy-turvy style all throughout the book.

With this forewarning I now proceed with longer selections.

MASS LISTS. Of all the old memorandum books and registers belonging to our missionary pioneers, that I have come across in my investigations, Father Gallitzin's is the only one that makes any explicit reference to Mass obligations, or, as they are now commonly termed, "intentions." In this respect his book is truly unique. In many places in it, I have noticed mention made of "intentions"; thus, on page 123, under the heading "Brick Business 1814," Jacob Marks is credited with $1 for a "High Mass"; on page 25, in an account headed "D. A. Gallitzin in Acct with Patk. Kerrig[an], I read the following items, to wit: "Masses to Rev. T. McGirr $15", and

" d[itt]o. Rev. M. Byrne $25 ". These evidently were so many "intentions" that were sent by Father Gallitzin to his two brother clergymen to be satisfied. Again, on page 59, in his account with P. White, he has set down "Cash for Altar $5.00," and a little below, "Masses," said presumably for the same White, but without naming the amount of the honorarium, he received for them. There is no date given to the above items, but the dates which next precede them, are for the first, "Aug. 1818," and for the other, "Jan. 1820." Among the Easter communicants for 1810, (p. 221), Father Gallitzin has made a memorandum of a Low Mass to be said for "Braddicks family." But apart from these scattered references to "intentions," four full pages are taken up exclusively with the names of parties for whom Father Gallitzin said, or was to say, Mass. The first page I copy is 226. On this are the names of about 65 persons for whom Father Gallitzin said Mass. The page is headed with merely the date "1811," and then, in two irregular columns down the page, are written the names of the several parties and the number of Masses for each. Before giving them, I should observe that Father Gallitzin used an easy way of keeping count of his Mass obligations. It is as follows, to wit: After each one's name, he set down—apparently at the same time—the number of Masses to be said; these he represented by so many straight lines or strokes, slightly inclined from top to bottom; these lines evidently indicated the number of Masses, then as each mass was satisfied Father Gallitzin drew a cross stroke through the line that represented the number of the Mass; in a word, he kept tally, or score, in the way that is familiar to pretty much every one. His system was very easy and simple. With the exception of the date "1811," which is at the head of the page, there is no other indication of the time when these Masses were said. Now-a-days priests are wont to date their celebrations of the Holy Sacrifice, besides noting the specific purpose for which it has been offered. In Father Gallitzin's lists of "intentions," I have observed that not all his strokes have been crossed; does this omission indicate forgetfulness on his part, or have any of his "intentions" remained unsatisfied?

In his list of Masses, Father Gallitzin has usually, though not always, expressed the special character of the Mass, as High Mass, Low Mass and so on, but instead of employing these terms, he has used abbreviations, such as "h. m." and "high," which means High Mass; "l. m." and "Low M." for Low Mass; "sol," for "Solemn Mass; Req. high" for a High or sung Dead Mass; "priv." for a private Mass, and "vot." for Votive Mass. With these observations, I now give his list of Mass obligations, as it appears on page 226. It is as follows: Widow Bradley, five Masses; Ela [Ella?] McMullen, a high Mass; C[ornelius?] Mac Donald, two Masses; Thomas Gallagher "10 years Dec. 1810"; [this date indicates perhaps the time of Gallagher's death;] Bishop Egan [of Philadelphia] ten Masses; John Fagan; Michael Braniff, one High Mass; P[atrick] Kerrigan, six Masses; Jos McGeehan, one Mass; D[anie]l O'Harra, one Mass; Ela [Ella?] McMullen, three Masses; P McMul[len], three Masses; Bish[op] Carroll [of Baltimore,] twenty-five Masses; H. SUBSCRIPTION LIST. The following list of names and the sums of money that are set down opposite take up 5 pages in the original, namely from page 181 to page 189, only alternate pages have been written on, the intervening ones being blank. The purpose for which the various amounts have been subscribed does not appear. If I may venture the opinion it is that the list represents the sums of money that Father Gallitzin's parishioners, at Loretto and thereabouts, bound themselves to pay annually for his support and maintenance. That this surmise is not wholly unwarranted, I deduce from certain entries that Father Gallitzin has elsewhere made in his Memorandum Book. These are as follows, namely (1) Salary of Hugh McCoy for 3 years at $4, $12.00;" (2) "Salary of Pat. Kerrigan for 1812 $8"; (3) "Salary of John Feltz for 1815 $6"; (4) Credit to Pat McLaughlin [1819?] for Salary $5, and (5) "Salary of John McKinzie since Jany 1 1812 to Jan 1 1820 $20.00." For a while I was considerably puzzled just what to make out of these entries. Two of the parties named, as is clear from other parts of the book, were certainly not of the salaried class. McLaughlin and McKinzie were day laborers, who as we will see further on were employed by Father Gallitzin in building his barn. Therefore the term "Salary," which Father Gallitzin uses, does not mean wages paid to them, but as I judge, the yearly contribution, or salary, which they—his parishoners—paid to him their priest and rector. That this is the real solution of the quandary appears moreover from the correspondence of the sums set down as "Salary" with the amount named in the subscription list, which each of the parties bound himself to pay to Father Gallitzin.

In copying the names I have made no other change than merely to put the Christian names into English. In the original Father Gallitzin has thrown them into Latin. Here is the list, namely:—

INVENTORY. The memoranda that now follows, I am constrained, for want of a better term, to style an inventory. I do not know what the list means, and cannot hazard any explanation, except that may be it is a memorandum of property that belonged to Father Gallitzin. This inventory is on page 225, the last page but one in the book, and consists of a column of miscellaneous items—33 in number, that takes up fully one-half of the page, while on the other half is a lot of memoranda, 5 in number that I am equally in the dark as to their meaning. I have copied them—both the inventory and the memoranda—just as they stand in the book; they are as follows:—

WEDDING OUTFIT OF ELIZABETH MCCONNELL. The following list—in Father Gallitzin's handwriting—is set down on pages 35-6. It is headed thus:—"to Elizabeth McConnell when she got married." Who this Elizabeth was and why Father Gallitzin should record so carefully this list of miscellaneous articles nowheres appears. I should not wonder, it is merely a conjecture, that Elizabeth was Father Gallitzin's housekeeper and that he took this way to pay her wages.

This is the wedding outfit, namely :—

MILLINERY. The following items, on pages 27-28 of the original, are set down in Father Gallitzin's handwriting. What this list of chiefly female wear and finery is doing here, I cannot make out. Was Father Gallitzin, maybe on some one or other of his trips to the large commercial centres of the country, as Philadelphia, Baltimore, or Pittsburg, commissioned by the several parties, whose names appear, to make purchases for them? and was Honora Burgoon his store-keeper? All through this Memorandum Book, there are so many evidences of Father Gallitzin's having dealt in various kinds of merchandise, that I should not wonder if he sometimes acted as commission agent for his people.

This is the list just as it stands in the Memorandum Book, namely:

"Hon. Burgoon in account with Sundry persons."

Three of the parties named, I notice have paid for their finery, the abbreviation "pd" being used to signify that, but did not the others? Did Father Gallitzin forget to check off all his receipts?

THE RACHEL WHITE ACCOUNT. On page 45, an account is opened with the following heading, namely, "D. A. Gallitzin agt Rachel White." I am not wholly certain just what these three letters—"agt"—mean. Are they an abbreviated form for the term against, that is, did Father Gallitzin charge the several items in the account against Rachel White? This is my belief.

TANNING. Five pages of the Memorandum Book are taken up exclusively with accounts that are headed at the top of the first page, (p. 193,) with the word "Tanning." The various entries—184 in number—relate to payments and to purchases, chiefly of skins and hides of various kinds, during the years 1815–19.

The accounts show that Father Gallitzin purchased 217 lots of skins and hides, specified as follows, namely, 45 calf, 12 cows, 28 sheep, 20 hides (the kind not set down,) 6 steer, 1 bull, 1 beef, 5 deer, 1 heifer and 98 "Spanish," besides a number of skins, of which neither the kind or number is given. There are also many purchases of lumber, bark, oil, lime and gypsum.

As the various memoranda give valuable information relating to the different kinds of merchandise that Father Gallitzin dealt in, the weights and measures that were then used in trade, the value of the various commodities and the wages paid for service, I have here given rather copious extracts from his "Tanning" accounts, together with the names of all the parties that are mentioned therein.

From an entry on page 192, it would appear that Father Gallitzin got his capital, or at least a part of it, for his "Tanning" venture, from Bedford Bank. This entry runs as follows: "March 25th 1815 received from Bedford Bank $187 .1" [sic]. The other entries in the bank account have already been given some pages ahead in this paper.

John Lender, who is frequently debited with various sums of money, seems to have been Father Gallitzin's agent, or maybe master tanner, and general man of affairs.

Here are the excerpts from the accounts, namely:—

BARN BUILDING. Six pages in the Memorandum Book (pages 76-82) are taken up with entries that relate to Father Gallitzin's barn building experience. They open with the heading, namely, "1818 Building of Barn," and then follow four sub-headings, that give the names of the several persons who were employed by Father Gallitzin to build his barn, namely: (1) — Sullivan; (2) Pat. McLaughlin, "who began to work, [the record says] June 25th 1818 at 75 cts p. [per] day;" (3) John McKinzie and (4) Simon Litzinger, mason. With each of these parties Father Gallitzin opened separate accounts, namely: on page 76, with Sullivan; on page 78, with McLaughlin; on page 80, with McKinzie, and, on page 82, with Litzinger. Sullivan's account shows that from June 25, 1818, the day he was first employed, and on which he receives $5 in cash, down to some time, later than September, 1819, he was paid $140.63½, at 21 different times; in 7 of which, he received altogether $107.69 in cash, and in the others, his wages in sundries, as a "baskett" [sic] 40 cts.; "a hog 77 lbs." at 6 cts. a pound, $4.62; on March 30, 10 bushels of wheat $15.00; Hay 100 lbs., 50 cents; in September, Father Gallitzin supplies him with "a Vomit 25 cts.;" ½ bushel of Salt $1.50; ½ hundredweight of flour $1.75; 35 hundredweight of flour at 3½ cents, $1.22½, and two bushels of Oats, $1.

Pat. McLaughlin, who begins work by getting $5 in cash, the first day he is employed by Father Gallitzin, receives altogether either in cash or kind from June 25, 1818, down to sometime after February, 1820, $203.75. He draws his wages at thirty-six different times; on 15 occasions he receives altogether the sum of $121.86 in cash, and the same as Sullivan, is paid the balance of his wages in merchandise, as "a baskett", 50 cts.;" "a Straw hat $1.25"; "on July 4th a Straw hat for Charles $1.25;" flour 46 lbs at 3½ cts. $1.61; on August 27, a bushel of wheat, $1.50; sometime in, or after, April, 1819, 2400 pounds of hay, $10; a side of upper leather, of which the value is not given; a book 12½ cents; in Sept. 1819, 4½ quarts of salt 45 cts. and "hawling" for 3 days at $4 a day, for which Father Gallitzin credits himself, though I do not see how he makes it out, with $10.00. Father Gallitzin also gives him "credit for salary, $5.00." The last entry in McLaughlin's account states that January, 1820, $8.60 is still due to him.

The entries in John McKinzie's account, which run from some date previous to June 27, 1818, to later than Dec. 23, 1820, show that Father Gallitzin paid him altogether $187.15 in cash at ten different times; besides this he takes up a note of McKinzie's in favor of a certain Seely for $14.75, and credits him with "Salary since Jany 1, 1812 to Jan 1 1820 $20.00."

Father Gallitzin on his side credits himself with various articles supplied to this McKinzie, as 1 bushel and 3 pecks of Spring wheat, $3.50; on June 27, "a Straw hat", $1.25; "a ten plate stove & hauling, $20.00"; "one bushel Salt $3.00," some time after Sept. 1819, "4 Gals Whiskey, $4.00"; 3 bushels of "Rie," $2.25 and 3 bushels of Oats, $1.50.

Simon Litzinger, the stone mason, receives $120.00 in cash from June 27, 1818, down to October 3, of the same year. Father Gallitzin credits himself with having "paid Patk. McLaughlin Jr. for Simon Litzinger," but does not state the amount, and also with "a Straw hat for Charles, $1.25."

FLOUR AND GRAIN. Dealing in grain and flour seems to have been another of Father Gallitzin's many business occupations. The whole of one page (page 105) and parts of the two succeeding pages are taken up with the names of parties to whom he sells or lends various quantities of flour and grain, usually in small amounts. Page 105 is headed "1814 flour lent [and] sold." The names of the buyers and borrowers are put down in separate columns. The borrowers are named, as follows: Ruth Gorman, Lender, Walter, R[obert] Burgoon, Archibald Christy, Jacob Marks, Alexander McDonald, Boyle; and the purchasers, widow Warthon, Luke M[aguire,] James Ryan, John Jones, widow McGuire, Mr. Agnus, Mr. Feltz, Richard McGuire, Hugh McCoy, William Meloy, Mr. Christy, James McGeehan, James C. Maguire, Christian Beber, P. McIntire, besides nearly all those who are named in the former column as borrowers. Messrs. Hartman and Richard Maguire each borrow two bushels of "Rie."

At the bottom of page 105, in the column in which Father Gallitzin has set down the names of the borrowers, I note the following entry, namely: "Pat. Mat. Frat. III," written in the same way and form in which Father Gallitzin was wont to record his Mass obligations or "intentions." This seems to be a memorandum, that he has made of his having said Mass three times for his father, mother and brother.

BRICK BUSINESS. Page 122 of the Memorandum Book is headed "Brick Business 1814," and it as well as the half page which follows (seemingly under the same heading), are taken up almost wholly with entries of various purchases and sales, but not one of them, as far as I can see, referible, except maybe in some recondite manner, to bricks or things appertaining thereunto. As samples of the various entries, I copy the following, namely: on Aug. 28, flour 56 pounds to Mr. Lender, $2.25; mutton to Jacob Marks, (the mutton was worth from 6 to 8 cents a pound;) sheepskins at 25 cents apiece; on July 18, potatoes at 50 cents a half bushel; sheep from $1.50 to $2.00 apiece; wheat $1.50 a bushel; hides 6 cents a pound; bacon 13 cents a pound; beef 5 cents a pound; "Cherry Boards" at $1.50 a hundred feet; Corn $1.00 a bushel; Oats 50 cents a bushel; "Hog Meat" $5 a hundredweight; "Rie" 75 cents a bushel; on August 10th, a half bushel of potatoes at 33 cents, and on August 20, the same at 25 cents.

Here and there through the above accounts are memoranda of money paid to Richard Maguire, James Elder, Christian Beber, "Mr. John Herman" and Samuel McAnulty. Peter Kerrigan, Sr., is paid in "Turnpike Orders." These seem to have been received at a considerably lower figure than their face value. Thus in December, 1819, Peter Kerrigan is debited as follows: "Cash $16 Turnpike $12.80", and, on "Dec. 27th Cash in turnpike Orders $5 $4.00."

THE WIDOW WARTHON'S ACCOUNTS. The entries relating to a certain Widow Warthon, whose Christian name seems to have been Catharine, and a spinner and weaver by occupation, take up several pages in the book, namely, the whole of pages 43, 62 and 63, and nearly the whole of pages 68, 72 and 73.

I select a few of the entries, namely: on September 2, apparently in the year 1814, she is credited with weaving 36 yards at 10 cents a yard; on December 22, 30 yards at the same price; again with "spinning 5 weeks, $3.45;" on March 31, with weaving "30 yards Tow at 8 cents" and "31 yards of Cotton" at 12 cents a yard. For November 1, I find this entry, viz.: "the girls worked 5 days at 40 cents" a day.

Further on the widow is credited with "5 days Work in harvest at 40 cents, $2.00;" then, "20½ doz. Woolen Yarn" spun at 25 cts., $5.12½; "5¾ Doz. flax at 25 cts., $1.44;" "17½ Linnen [sic] wove at 10 cents, $1.95." After May 8, apparently in 1814, she spins "Wool 14 Doz and 9 Cutts at 15 cts. a Day, $2.47," after the same month in 1816, "28 yards Shirting at 12½ cents, $3.50," and "23 yards of Linsey at [the same price,] $2.88," while in July, she spins "15 Doz[en and] 9 Cutts—25 cts., $3.92."

The above excerpts have been taken at random from the different pages as samples merely of the various forms of entry. The credit side of the accounts show a no less peculiar and miscellaneous form of payments.

For his spinning and weaving Father Gallitzin seems to have paid (as usual) in kind. Here are some of the credit entries, namely: 7 yards of Linsey at 73 cts. a yard, $5.11;" "Upper Leather for one pair shoes," 33 cents; "2 Check Aprons at $1.00 a piece; "flyers" (what these may have been, I cannot even imagine), 25 cents; a barrel of flour, $4.00; "Cotton 7¾ lb. at 46 cts., $3.56;" "16 lb. of Wool at 50 cts., $8.00;" "4½ lb. Carded Wool at 75 cts., $3.18;" "5 lb. Cotton at 40 cts., $2.00;" "Bricks 2000 at $6.00, $12.00;" "Bacon 11 lb. at 15 cts., $1.65;" "10 lb. Carded Wool for $6.00;" "300 Bricks at 67 cts., $2.00;" "in May 1816, one Straw Hat, $1.00;" "Hay 900 lb., $4.50;" "1 Bushl of Corn, $1.00;" "2 Bushels of Buckwheat, 50 cts., $1.00;" 3½ yds. Cotton at 100 cts., $3.50;" "5 lb. Wool, 50 cts., $2.50;" "3 yds. flannell [sic] 75 cts.. $2.25;" "2 Pair of Shoes, $1.50, $3.00;" "1 Skane [sic]

Silk, 12½ cts.;" "Red Muslin, 18 cts.;" "2 small Skanes [sic] Silk, 6¼ cts., 12½ cts.;" "Making 1 pair Shoes, $1.00;" "a Wheel [maybe a spinning wheel?] $4.00;" "flanell [sic] 3 yds. at 67 cts., $2.00;" "5 yds. black flannel" (no value is set down;) "1 Cow, $16.00;" "6 yds. Bombaset, 75 cents, $4.50;" 6 yds. flannell [sic] at 100, $6.00," and "2 silk hdkerchfs" (handkerchiefs), at $1.00 a piece.

LUMBER. Father Gallitzin, as appears from numerous entries everywhere through the book, appears to have dealt extensively in lumber, perhaps the produce of his own woods, or maybe what he himself had received in payment, from his parishioners and others.

Saml Martin Alexandria 2000 feet W Sh from 10 to 14 [inches wide]

Jno. Douglass Tyrone forge 2000 feet W Sh from 18 to 20 Inches broad."

In 1814, Father Gallitzin ships to Ebensburg "5,045 feet of inch Pine Boards, 500 of them to "Mr. MacDonald" and the remainder to "James Meloy." Their value is set down at $50.

Page 49 is taken up wholly with shipments of boards, most of them to Ebensburg, to Abraham Mooney and James C. Maguire, besides various smaller quantities to widow Williams, Mr. Royer, — Marks, — Cristy, Th. B. Durbin, Alex. McCoy, Robert Burgoon and — Miller. The prices charged varied, ordinarily $1 a hundred feet; the widow Williams pays only 80 cents a hundred and Cristy and Durbin get their boards "half priced," In 1815, as I learn from page 135, Father Gallitzin sells boards to various parties, as to James C. Maguire 278 feet of ¾ inch, $2.32; to Jno. Marks, 100 feet of same .60; to Jno. Burgoon 366 feet of inch boards, and to Jos. Mageehan 1,000 inch boards, hauled, $15.

STONE DAM. This account (p. 18) is headed as follows: "D. A. Gallitzin in Acct. with Hugh McCoy," and then follows this contract, namely:

"Hugh McCoy is to receive for Stone Dam	$237 00
for building stone wall	147 33
hawling [sic] logs	32 63½

With these selections closes the series of excerpts that I have made from Father Gallitzin's Memorandum Book. I have been careful to leave out nothing noteworthy, or singular, but to copy whatever might serve more plainly to reflect the peculiar characteristics of the venerable missionary.

The conclusions which I have drawn from my study of his book, are as follows, namely, that with the exception of the lists of names, there is from page to page very slight, if any, evidence of a systematic, or methodical mind, and my reasons are first, because there is no order of sequence in the book; secondly, because a large number, if not the greater part of the entries bear either no date at all, or at the most incomplete ones; thirdly, because with all his care in recording even petty details, he was sadly at fault in his arithmetical conclusions, and lastly, because, no one who studies this book, let him twist and turn the accounts as he may, will ever be able to discover just how Father Gallitzin stood in money matters, not one of his many accounts, covering as has been said, a period of about twenty years, being balanced rightly, if at all.

But that we may not seem to overlook the good points that appear therein, it is only fair to recognize the fact, that despite the wholly unbusinesslike way in which Father Gallitzin kept his books, due no doubt to his unfamiliarity with commercial practice, he has everywhere, as is apparent, been careful to enter details.

His records have been uniformly written in a very graceful and almost lady-like hand (Father Gallitzin was a neat writer;) the letters though minute in form are well shaped, and the lines run straight across the page and so closely together, as to easily number from 35 to 40 to a given page.

And now I should conclude this article on Father Gallitzin's Memorandum Book, were it not for an omission, or rather a series of omissions, in it, that has been puzzling my mind during the many months that I have had it in my keeping. The puzzle is this, namely: that in all the hundreds, maybe thousands, of entries in the Memorandum Book, that relate to the purchases and sales of so many different kinds of commodities, of staples of food, of farm and field produce, of horses and cattle, of grain, meats, lumber, hides, skins, bricks, of even apothecaries' stores ,of drugs, whiskey, flax, clothing, linen, cotton and millinery, there is not—to repeat it, in all these records, one entry that in any way refers to what of all others might most naturally be expected in a dealer, in one, who besides running a grist mill, a saw mill, a brick yard and a tannery, was also, at least apparently, a stock raiser and a farmer, this is, the marked omission in the Memorandum Book, of any reference to garden, orchard or dairy produce. In the book, there is not a word about vegetables, fruit, poultry (with the exception of a goose or two,) milk, butter, eggs or lard.

Now if Father Gallitzin had no farm, how is it, one may ask that he dealt so largely in grain and potatoes? and if he did keep a farm, why is there so marked an omission of vegetables and fruit? if he had no pasture lands where did he get the cattle, the meats, beef, pork and mutton that he sold in such large quantities? and, if he had pastures, why too did he not keep a dairy? This riddle must, I suppose, go unsolved, unless maybe in this hypothesis, which while untangling the riddle, is nevertheless presented here not wholly without misgivings. The solution I offer, is that Father Gallitzin in reality did not of himself raise, produce, buy, or sell any of the many commodities that are named in this book; that he had neither farm, orchard, garden or dairy, except maybe one just large enough to supply the wants of the good missionary's larder and table; that all the entries in the Memorandum Book, were in fact merely memoranda of exchanges, or barters of the several commodities named, which had been given to him in the first instance by his parishioners as tithes, church dues, or free gifts, and which now Father Gallitzin, in turn, disposed of to his creditors as payments.

That in those days—it was the first quarter of the present century, people carried on their business mostly through barter and exchange, is not at all unknown to students. Every reader of our early history knows that as a rule, people were, if not actually poor, at least in want of ready money, and that this financial stringency was not a condition merely of backwood settlements, but of even large commercial centres.

As a result of the wars of 1776 and 1812, there was a dearth of specie; government script was worth far less than its face value; there was little, if any, trust in banks and moneyed institutions, and, accordingly, people traded. That this fashion of trading has not yet gone out of date is within the writer's own knowledge. In charge of the Order of which he is a member, there is a mission in which for years gone by, there has been in vogue a similar system of exchanges, or trades, as was the case in Father Gallitzin's day at Loretto. In this mission nearly all the payments made to the rector for pew-rents, church collections, fees for baptisms, etc., are made in home produce, as butter, apple-butter, lard, cord wood, eggs, cream, woolen stockings, and even fence-rails and the like. All those things are valuable. The country stores accept them from the rector in exchange for purchases he makes from their stock. Hence I conclude that Father Gallitzin received payment from his many debtors in kind, and in kind similarly satisfied his own creditors.

BIBLIOGRAPHICAL NOTES. I have thought it better to put in the form of an appendix the few bibliographical notes relating to Rev. Demetrius Augustine Gallitzin, which I have collected from time to time in the course of my reading.

Those who are desirous of learning more about the Apostle of the Alleghanies than can be gathered from the preceding paper may consult the following authorities.

They are named in chronological order, as follows:

(1.) A sketch, under the heading, Rev. Demetrius A. Gallitzin, The Apostle of the Alleghanies, by the Rev. Charles Constantine Pise, D. D., published in the Biographical Annual for 1841 and republished in The United States Catholic Historical Magazine, (New York, 1890), Vol. III., pp. 154–9.

(2.) The Metropolitan, (Baltimore, 1856), Vol. IV., pp. 201-212, gives a paper on Father Gallitzin by Richard H. Clarke, LL. D., of New York.

(3.) The Catholic World, (New York, 1865), Vol. II., pp. 145–158, publishes a translation of the Rev. Henry Lemcke's paper on Father Gallitzin, which first appeared in the Revue Generale of Brussels.

(4.) A Memoir on The Life and Character of the Rev. Prince Demetrius A. de Gallitzin, Founder of Loretto and Catholicity, in Cambria County, Pa. Apostle of the Alleghanies, &c. This Memoir was written by Rev. Thomas Heyden, of Bedford, Pa., who, among other things in the preface, says that he was for almost a quarter of a century, bound by many ties to the venerable missionary, assisted him in his dying moments, and twice preached his funeral sermon, once, on the day of his interment, and, again, when his remains were transferred to a new resting place.

Father Heyden's Memoir—in 200 pages—is rich in documentary references, and has preserved the Autobiography of the Reverend Prince, which is printed at the end of the Memoir.

For frontispiece, Father Heyden's book has an engraving representing the Countess Amelia of Schmettau, mother of the Prince. The book was published at Baltimore, in 1869. All the statements made by Father Gallitzin in his Autobiography were endorsed Jan. 3–15, 1827, by Baron Francis de Maltitz, Russian chargé d'affaires at Washington.

(5) From Finotti's Bibliographia Catholica Americana, (New York, 1872,) p. 122, I learn that Littell's Living Age, (Boston, 1871, December number,) republished from The Cornhill Magazine, an account of the Countess Amelia, mother of Father Gallitzin.

(6.) The Bibliographia Catholica Americana (as above,) by Rev. Joseph M. Finotti, names among the works of Father Gallitzin, A Defence of Catholic Principles in a Letter to a Protestant Minister, (Pittsburgh, 1816,) and republished at Winchester, Va., in 1818.

(7.) The Catholic Annual, (Catholic Pub. Soc'y, New York), for 1872, gives a graphic and very readable account of the venerable missionary, and on page 44, a striking engraving representing the meeting between him and Father Lemcke, the Benedictine.

(8.) The Life of Demetrius Augustine Gallitzin, Prince and Priest, (New York, 1873), by Miss Sarah M. Brownson, daughter of Orestes A. Brownson, LL. D., the illustrious convert and writer, is a valuable contribution to Catholic Americana. It is prefaced with a paper on the character and history of the Greek Schism, written by her father. An engraving of the Rev. Father Gallitzin is given in the front of the book.

(9.) A History of the Catholic Church in the Dioceses of Pittsburg and Allegheny, etc., (New York, 1880), by Rev. A. A. Lambing, A. M., contains many valuable references to Rev. Prince Gallitzin.

(10.) In his Conewago. A Collection of Catholic Local History, (Martinsburg, W. Va., 1885), Mr. John T. Reily makes mention of Father Gallitzin in his sketches of the pioneer missionaries of Conewago (pp. 43, 54, 58, 60–61 ;) of Littlestown (p. 95 ;) of Taneytown, in Maryland (p. 108 ;) of Frederick, in the same, (p. 114), and of Martinsburg, in West Virginia (p. 133). At page 145, he gives a likeness of "The Missionary Priest Gallitzin," the same as in Miss Brownson's work, followed by a summary of his life.

(11.) The Catholic Historical Researches (Pittsburgh, Pa.) Vol. II., p. 92, has a brief sketch of Father Gallitzin, and, in Vol. III., pp. 58–68, an extended series of reflections on his life and labors, by Rev. A. A. Lambing A. M. On page 63 of Vol. III., is part of a letter, dated Oct. 20, 1798, from Bishop Carroll to Father Gallitzin.

(12). In the first volume of the Records of the American Catholic Historical Society of Philadelphia, (Philadelphia, 1887,) mention of Father Gallitzin frequently occurs. For the several references one should consult the index. On page 209, it is related that, in 1804, he was one of the incorporators of St. Augustine's Church in Philadelphia.

(13.) Dr. Shea makes very frequent references to him in the last three volumes of his History of the Catholic Church, (New York, 1888–90–92). For the various places see the indexes at the end of the volumes, and for bibliographical data, the foot-notes at the bottom of the pages. In Vol. II., p. 443, is a facsimile of Father Gallitzin's signature, thus—"D. A. Gallitzin," a shaky, though not ill-written affair, that I suppose he penned in his old age. In the Memorandum Book, he has written his name frequently, in a fine, easy flowing and graceful hand. On page 445, ibid., is a portrait of Father Gallitzin.

In Vol. II., p. 290, Dr. Shea quotes from Father Gallitzin's A Letter to a Protestant Friend on the Holy Scriptures (Ebensburg, 1820,) and, in Vol. III., p. 555, names his Six Letters of Advice, which were a reply to strictures on the Catholic Church that had been made by a Presbyterian Synod held at Columbia, Pa. The date of their publication is not given.

(14.) The Memorial Volume of St. Mary's Seminary of St. Sulpice, (Baltimore, 1891), refers incidentally, on page 6, to the seminary life of Demetrius Gallitzin; says that he joined the Sulpitians, from whom he withdrew shortly after in order to aid Bishop Carroll in the missions and that he labored for a time in Virginia and Maryland. The Memorial (ibid.) puts his death in 1846.

(15.) In his I. C. B. U. Journal, (Phila. 1892), No. 336, third page, Mr. Martin I. J. Griffin has published three important documents, two of them letters from Father Gallitzin to James N. Causten, Esq., of Washington, D. C., and the third the Appeal, which Father Gallitzin addressed to the Emperor of Russia, in 1825; the three have been reprinted in The American Catholic Historical Researches, (Phila.) for July, 1892, Vol. IX., pp. 98–101, and 102–105.

(16.) The American Catholic Historical Researches, (Phila.,) for April, 1892, Vol. IX., republishes the obituary of Father Gallitzin, which appeared in The Catholic Herald of Phila., shortly after his demise; also, an extract from a Letter of Rev. Thomas Heyden, relating to the same; copy of an appeal issued, in 1817, by "Demetrius Augustine Smith, Parish-Priest of Loretto and Jacob Glass, Luke McGuire, Joseph Lilly, John Storm, John Weakland and Jacob Burgoon, Church Wardens", for aid to rebuild their church; the will of Father Gallitzin, made Apr. 25, 1840 (he died May 6th of the same year;) a letter, dated Loretto, Jan. 11, 1892, of Rev. Ferdinand Kittell, rector, describing the repairs to Father Gallitzin's church; an account of the solemn transfer of the remains of Father Gallitzin to a new tomb, and the dedication of the memorial chapel, on Sept. 29, 1892. On page 51, ibid. is a picture giving the front view of the church (built 1817), chapel and residence of Father Gallitzin at Loretto, from a photograph taken May 27th, 1891, and, on page 53, another picture of "the first cemetery of the Alleghanies", (opened in 1799), and a rear view of the old church, chapel and residence of Father Gallitzin, from a photograph taken at the same time as the above.

In the July number of the same, (Vol. IX., pp. 101-2, and 105-6,) are published two letters of the Baron de Tuyll to Prince Demetrius Augustine Gallitzin, and, on page 106, a letter dated May 25, 1840, addressed by "Francis Patrick Kenrick, Bp." &c., of Philadelphia, to Mr. Henry J. McGuire, of Loretto, one of the executors of Father Gallitzin's will, in which the Bishop refers to his gift of $50 to Father Gallitzin for the purpose of buying a chalice for his church at Loretto.

(17.) Leben und Wirken des Prinzen D. A. Gallitzin, von P. Heinrich Lemcke, is the title of a work that is quoted by Father Lambing in his Researches, Vol. III., p. 63.

HISTORY

OF THE

Church in Niagara, Canada.

BY

REV. P. J. HAROLD, PASTOR.

The little town of Niagara, or as the hotel men call it, "Niagara on the Lake," has a population of about 1,000 persons, 200 of them Catholics. It was the Capital of Upper Canada when that new province was cut out of old "Quebec" in 1791, and was honored by the early sessions of the first parliament of what is now called the province of Ontario. The town is prettily situated on the northeastern point of the Niagara peninsula, fourteen miles from the great Falls, and opposite the American Fort Niagara and Youngstown. It is flanked east and west by the ruins of Forts George and Missisiaga, the former of which frowns in its decrepit way on the river; the latter, in feeble imitation of its mate, on Lake Ontario.

When Champlain began his explorations in the woody wilds and waters of Canada, this pioneer of French dominion on our continent brought with him priests, Franciscans and Jesuits, to evangelize the savage tribes. His dream was a new French empire, founded on faith, and ruled by the Cross. As early as 1611 Biencourt and Father Biard had reached the Kennebec, and in 1626 Father Daillon was on his way through western New York to evangelize the "Neutre" Nation, as those tribes were called which held the Niagara peninsula as their own. They were neutral indeed as between the Hurons and Iroquois, but with the Algonquins of Michigan they had a standing feud, the periodical breaking out of which was marked by the most heartless savagery. Among Indians they seem to have been alone in the practice of torturing the women who fell into their hands. Their unbridled lust was as remarkable as their cunning and cruelty, their lecherous habits driving them into the abyss of unnatural foulness that distingnished the Canaanites of old.

No wonder they beat and sought to kill the intrepid apostle whose voice was the first heard near the roar of the mighty cataract, announcing the evangel of salvation. Soharrisen, the chief, however, protected the Father from sanguinary violence during the three months he continued preaching to the hard-hearted tribe.

The Creator had spoken to them in the thunder tones of Niagara, and the eagles soaring above the awful chasm must have raised their souls, had they been even partly human, to the realm of infinity where the Creator dwelt; but, when the men of Israel, who were led by the cloud, and had gazed upon the pillar of fire, hardened their hearts, bowing down to idols at the foot of Sinai, is it any wonder that these voluptuaries would turn a deaf ear alike to the thrilling voice of nature, and the feebler though authoritive speech of Christ's missionary and priest? The voice of passion was louder far and more imperious than the voice of the cataract, and Daillon retired from the unequal struggle.

The saintly and heroic Brebeuf preached to these Niagara Indians about ten years later. It is miraculous that they did not anticipate their northern brethren, who in 1649 inflicted the most ingenious and horrible tortures on the Jesuit martyr and his companion Lalemant. At this time Franciscans and Jesuits alike followed the savages about, living as they lived, eating their sagamite, sleeping in their wigwams, paddling in their canoes, becoming, in a word, "all things to all men" as they planted the seed of truth and civilization.

In the western plains bounded only by the horizon, or in the northern woods where the scream of the eagle by day or the hoot of the owl by night were the only sounds in contrast with the fierce whoop of the bloodthirsty savage or the dying moan of a tortured victim; exposed to the torrid rays of the summer sun, or benumbed and foodless in the trackless snow—such was the lot, such the risk of the priest missionery in search of immortal souls. Contrast his life, its aims, its motives and its current with that of the greater number of men in Europe at this date. "Gaze on this picture, then on that." It was the period of the Thirty Years' War. France was straining every nerve to crush her neighbor, Austria. Sweden, Norway and Bohemia swarmed with armed hosts. Tilly, Wallenstein, Gustavus Adolphus claimed the attention of mankind, and rose or sank with the breath of fatuous fame. England and Scotland were in the throes of civil war, Puritan, Covenanter and Prelate fighting to the death for ascendancy. Ireland was under the heel of the truculent monster Cromwell. Poland and Candia were trembling in anticipation of the blow shortly to fall on them from the Mussulman arms. War, blood, fire, desolation, and above all the temple of fame, towards which men were rushing, trampling each other in the struggle for entrance! Who would not give the palm for true heroism and true philosophy to the missionary among the dusky savages? And how different the results of their labors from those of the few Protestants who seriously undertook to Christianize the Indian. "Heathens they are and will ever remain," said one Mr. Andrews, who preached for six years among the tribes. Like Eliot, he abandoned the field in dispair. The labors of the priests were just on the point of yielding a great harvest when a rancorous combination of politics and bigotry rendered them almost sterile.

It is probable that from 1640 till 1678, when the adventurous and unfortunate La Salle built a fort on the upper Niagara river, no priest visited the godless Neutrals; but the very next year we find Father Hennepin here, carrying his vestments on his back, wearily making his way to "Fort Niagara." This priest was the first to give an intelligent account of the Falls, and to leave a sketch that is far from being unfaithful to the magnificent model.

At this time Governor Dongan of New York, acting on behalf of England, was pushing his claims westward and driving the Jesuit missionaries and their converts before him. It was therefore in spite of this man that De Denonville again took possession, in the name of France, of LaSalle's abandoned post on the Niagara river. For about a year the French, one hundred in number, occupied the fort, and a chaplain attended to their spiritual wants. They then retired from it until the year 1721, from which date on they held it, until 1759, when the English captured it. It is very probable that the chaplain during the period of French occupation gave some attention to the Indians on the west side of the river. At all events, Mr. Piquet, a Sulpician missionary, traveled about the whole Niagara Peninsula in 1751, instructing the natives and reviving the faith of the converts of earlier days.

As is known, the English were successful in the war against the French in every quarter, and at last took quiet possession of their conquest after the treaty of Paris in 1763. Though nominally they granted freedom of conscience to the conquered Catholics, facts pointed in another direction, and the French priests retired from all the posts west of Montreal, except Detroit, and Sandwich on the opposite shore.

A few traders, mechanics and officers' servants constituted the only white population of Niagara, when, thirteen years after the treaty, the American colonies revolted against British rule.

After the States had won their independence, a number of families who had some property, and a lot of disbanded soldiers who had none, and who preferred, for various reasons, to remain British subjects, left the United States and were given the pick and choice of the lands of what is now Ontario. This was about 1783. By the way, an act was passed in 1790 allowing United States subjects who wished to change their allegiance and reside in Canada, to bring in their slaves free of duty. It is said that among these "United Empire Loyalists," as the emigrants were called, a few Catholics were found. At all events, among the Hessian troops sent over by England during the war were some Catholic soldiers of fortune. These unsuccessful warriors were lodged in the Niagara barracks. It is, then, quite possible that, what with refugees, traders, camp followers and Hessians, there existed at that time the nucleus of the present parish.

At this time Father Edmund Burke, an Irish priest, was attached to the diocese of Quebec. He knew of the derelict condition of the few Catholics in the western part of the province, and offered himself for the work of a missionary. After much correspondence between him, his Bishop, the Archbishop of Dublin and the Propaganda, he was appointed a Miss. Ap., and at once addressed himself to his task. He was evidently on good terms with the Governor (Simons), who made over to him at a cheap rate a great deal of land in various parts of Canada. By a will, which I have in my possession, made by him in 1797 (24th Aug.), he calls himself "missionary to the Indians" and leaves all his property to the Bishop of Kildare, Ireland. In all probability, he resided mostly in Toronto, or York, as it was then called, but he frequently visited the camp here and acted as chaplain to the forces. Liancourt, quoted by Dr. O'Sullivan, says there were Catholic services at Niagara in 1792; but I do not believe this possible, as Burke appears not to have come here till 1793 or '94, and in his letters to Archbishop Troy, quoted by Gilmary Shea (p. 475, Catholic Church in United States), he speaks of himself as a pioneer in the territory.*

The late Mr. D. A. O'Sullivan, in an article in the Toronto Jubilee volume of 1892, is authority for the statement that a Father Des Jardins officiated in Niagara in 1802; but he left no parish records, and there is a gap of 25 years between him and his successor.

Although equal before the law, Catholics were treated with studied harshness on all occasions, and the bigotry which the lessons of the War of Independence helped to repress in the States has lived on, and like a noxious plant waxes hardy with the onflowing years. With a view to offset the influence of Quebec, which counted few Protestants among its population, the British Parliament divided the province in 1791, creating Upper Canada. It was sought to have it exclusively Protestant, but Providence willed otherwise. Niagara was the capital of the new province. It was sometimes called Newark, and here sat the first parliament. Among the first bills it passed was one to legalize marriages performed by "magistrates, captains, surgeons (army)," etc., in the absence of a Protestant minister. The aim was to shut out the priests and compel the employment of Anglican ministers. I have met some Catholic soldiers who were married by the "army surgeon," but the bulk of the faithful cared little for such blundering statutes.

At the time when Father Kelly labored in western New York and along the eastern bank of the Niagara, Father Jas. Campion, also an Irishman, struggled on through fearful hardships on the western side, and in the very territory consecrated by the zeal of the early French apostles. There is in Niagara an elderly lady, Mrs. Painter, nee Walsh, born in 1819, who remembers the visits of Father Campion to the mission. He was appointed parish priest by Bishop MacDonnell, who had been chosen vicar apostolic of Upper Canada by Pius VII. in January, 1819, and made titular bishop in 1826. At this period there were in the whole 225 miles of territory between Detroit and Niagara Falls but three priests, viz.: Fathers Fluet, Crevier and Campion.

The old Niagara register, whose sere and worn leaves tell the tale of religious progress hereabout, opens with an entry in the handwriting of Father Campion. It runs thus: "The first day of June, by me, Roman Catholic Missionary at Niagara, Dundas, etc., etc., has been baptized Mary Anne Hughes, born the 2nd day of January, 1827, of the lawful marriage of Jas. Hughes and Mary May. James W. Campion, M. Pt." The distance to Dundas, about fifty miles, had to be gone over in a rude stage or on horseback, on new roads, or through the bush and swamp, and when a sick call required the priest's presence at a death bed, Father Campion often had to travel one or even two hundred miles.

Regularly he attended London and St. Thomas twice a year, and Niagara and Dundas about once a month. He remained in charge of the district till July, 1830. There was then no church, no priest's house, no church property of any kind, not even a graveyard. The dead were buried in a corner of St. Mark's, the Protestant cemetery; the priest boarded at a Miss Young's, and Mass was said in a rented house, now owned by Protestants, and later on in a flat over a brick store on Queen street.

There is no means of ascertaining the number of Catholics in 1830; but after careful search and inquiry I should judge that three dozen families were represented at the services, exclusive of soldiers, whenever Fr. Campion visited the mission. He records for the three years of his ministry here 64 baptisms, 6 professions of faith, 17 marriages and 6 burials. Some of the baptisms were of children brought from Newfane and other parts of New York State.

Father Cullen succeeded Fr. Campion, and on April 3rd, 1831, called a meeting, at which it was resolved, with due formalities, to open a susbscription list for the purpose of erecting a church. Dan. McDougal presided, and Geo. McCann, Sec., was appointed to attend to the details. It is probable that a start was made the following year, as the building, 60 x 40, with large gothic windows and 50 feet spires, was completed in 1834. Bishop MacDonnell came over and celebrated the first Mass in the new church (Nov. 9th), which he blessed with the invocation of St. Vincent de Paul. The register says that the first communicants were "Miss Dixon and Mrs. Duff."

Thus at length, after two hundred years of trials and patient suffering, was the "Neutral" territory marked with a substantial edifice surmounted by the sign of our redemption.

Father Polin succeeded Father Cullen, and registers in Oct., 1833, a baptism performed in "Gravelly Bay," now Port Colborne, 30 miles south from here: another evidence of the extent of the mission. In all, he records 10 baptisms and one marriage.

In the year 1832 Bishop MacDonnell, who, through his efforts to keep the Scotch Highlanders and other Catholics in line with British policy, had found favor with the government secured a grant of four acres of land south of the Protestant cemetery. It was on this tract that the church was erected and a cemetery fenced off, in which there are still standing at least two headstones, plain 4x6 slabs of limestone, with the year 1832 legible, though the letters of the inscription are barely traceable.

In the year 1834 Father Edward Gordon, afterwards V. G. of Hamilton, took up his residence in Niagara, and, having finished the church, erected a presbytery. Subscriptions were opened to pay for this "Glebe" house, as it is called in the minutes of the meeting assembled for the purpose, and a Lieutenant Colman was appointed to collect among the "rifles" here and in Toronto. The books show an expenditure of £253 14s. 11½d. for this frame cottage with four rooms, but the receipts up to the year 1840 were only £50. Father Gordon then paid the debt himself, depending on Providence to be recouped. He also put up a school house, a one story roughcast building, on the n. w. corner of the church lot. The records say nothing of the time of its erection, but a meeting called for the purpose of "putting pews in the church and painting the ceiling" was held there in 1844. One resident of this town says he went to school there in '43. It is probable, then, it was built in 1842. A small wing was put to it in 1849–50, and in November, 1857, three Sisters of St. Joseph, Philumena, Dosetheus and Catharine, were installed as teachers by the Rev. P. Mulligan, then pastor.

In 1862 the sisters had to be withdrawn, owing to lack of support, and a secular male teacher was once more employed.

A Father Lalor, Miss. Ap., records baptisms in 1832 and '33, but he was surely not a resident priest.

Bishop Gaulin, coadjutor of Bishop MacDonnell, visited Niagara in 1834, and on the 13th Sept. confirmed 5 males and 6 females (sic)—ranging in age from 13 to 23 years. This was the first time the sacrament of confirmation was administered in the mission east of Sandwich.

Father Gordon records for his first year 94 baptisms, some of them from Lewiston, N. Y., and elsewhere east of the river, 15 marriages and 8 burials.

From this time forth the mission of Niagara seems to have stood on a firm basis. Its pastor was resident, and no longer obliged to travel to Dundas, though his territory was still sufficienly extensive—St. Catharine's, St. John's, Niagara Falls, Fort Colborne, and Smithville being in his care. In St. Catharine's, 12 miles s. w., Fr. Gordon built a church in 1835, and occasionally held services there, until in 1840 a resident priest was appointed.

At Niagara Falls, overlooking the mighty cataract, he built a church in 1839*, where he said Mass every second Sunday while he remained at the mission, that is, until 1846.

He kept a very exact record of all baptisms, marriages, burials, confirmations and professions of faith, here and there giving little bits of information about the people concerned: as, for instance, on the margin opposite the baptismal record of James Moreau he writes: "This man was sentenced to death for participating in the rebellion. He led the insurgents at the Short Hills. He was 33 years old and was received into the Church in jail, 29th July, was executed 30th July, 1838."†

Again, regarding the marriage of one Primace he says: "This negro was married by a magistrate in 1826." Primace became a Catholic and left at his death property for the church which was taken away by the courts and given to other claimants, under the statute of mortmain. In 1836 a marriage ceremony was performed in the church. The man was a Protestant, and yet the Bishop allowed this, after the publication of the banns.

Bishop Gaulin administered confirmation in 1836 to 18 persons, 7 of them adults. The priest records the names and ages of the candidates, and does this on every such occasion during the eleven years of his administration. He also gives, which is important, the total Catholic population of the peninsula, for a space of a thousand square miles, or about 30 miles every way. It was eight hundred and seventeen souls (817). In this district are now ten parishes: St. Catharine's, Port

*Begun 1837 and completed Oct. 13th, 1839.

Dalhousie, Niagara, Thorold, Merrilton, Smithville, Fort Erie, Clifton, Niagara Falls, Fort Colborne.

A sad entry occurs among the burials for the year 1843. A priest 26 years old, who could not have been more than a few years ordained, took sick while visiting relatives at the Falls and died suddenly. At the funeral "were present Rev. Mr. Mullin, Mr. Charest and Mr. M'Intosh." He was buried under the main altar, yet not a living soul in the mission recollects anything of the occurrence, and many a time I said Mass at the altar which is his tomb before I discovered the evidence of the fact in the crumpled register. Such is human glory.

Folded in the old register I found a peculiar document. It is a petition from the congregation of St. Vincent de Paul's church, Niagara, asking Bishop Power (we the undersigned) to give the "necessary power and instructions to have the stations of the cross erected in order that we and all who are disposed may have an opportunity of receiving the many spiritual advantages to be obtained by devout prayer and meditation on Christ's passion," "and your petitioners, as in duty, will ever pray, etc., etc." (Signed)

JOHN MCHENRY,
DAVID LANGAN,
MICH. MCGUIRE,
EDWARD GORDON, Pt.
for the rest of the congregation."

This document, written on a full sheet of foolscap, bears the date of 9th Dec., 1844. The petition is on one side, the reply granting the petition on page 2, a declaration by the pastor that he has this day erected, etc., in the presence of the "undersigned witnesses"—no names are appended however—and on page 4 is the Bishop's name in full, with the words, "favored by Rev. M. P. McDonogh," in one corner. The Bishop's letter, sealed with red wax, is countersigned by "J. J. Hay, Sec.," and recites that he has authority from a decree of Gregory XIII. to delegate any priest to erect the "Via Crucis," and hereby delegates, etc., etc." The letter is "given at Toronto" the 13th of Dec.,

1844. The priest's declaration shows that the stations were put up on the 5th February, Ash Wednesday. A copy of this declaration also exists in the archives, made out by Father Gordon in obedience to the Bishop's order to do so.

The number of baptisms, in each year of this pastorate, which was the most prosperous of the mission, is indicated in the following table.

Father Gordon was succeeded by Father Jno. Carroll, who was pastor until about 1855 or 1856. He lived for some years in retirement after this, and finally accepted a chaplaincy in Chicago, where he died a few years ago at the age of 92 or 94 years.*

Fathers Leveque, Cullen, Boyle, Musard and Wardy spent each a short time here, and thus we come to the year 1857. In 1858 Niagara Falls was made a separate parish and Father Mulligan assumed charge of Niagara alone.

*This Father Carroll was a relation of "Charles Carroll of Carrollton," and a nephew of the Bishop Burke mentioned earlier in this article. He was brought to this country by his uncle, after whose death he administered his Diocese (1824). He inherited conjointly with a Wm. Tobin and Bishop Du Plessis a great deal of property in Upper Canada. He came to Toronto, and while administrator of that Diocese (1850) gave charge of his temporalities to a certain O'Neill. He lost everything through the failure of this man in business.

The southern limit of the parish was then fixed at the Queenston Mountain, where the lofty monument erected to honor General Brock attracts the gaze of travellers.*

Towards the lake in a westerly direction the parish extends eight miles, making an area of about 60 miles in all. In this territory the Catholics have gradually diminished since '58 from seventy-five families to about forty. The baptisms for the ten years from '58 to '68 averaged 20. From '69 to '80, 17, and from '70 to '91, 10 per annum.

The era of repairs had set in. The church, begun in 1832, the presbytery in '36, the school in '42 and the fences around the four acre cemetery, all conspired to make trouble for the pastors and congregation. Father Mulligan in 1860 removed a large fire place and chimney that threatened to topple over and crush in the house. Father Jas. Hobin (1862–7) and Father T. J. Sullivan (1868) began the refurnishing of the house and the sanctuary. Father Kelly ('69–'70) bought a small pipe organ for the gallery. Fr. Laboureau (1871) improved the buildings and fences. Father Berrigan ('72–'74) got the church painted a stone gray. Fathers P. Kiernan, A. J. O'Reilly, E. Gallagher, P. Murphy, O. C. C., and F. Shanahan bring down the succession of pastors to the writer of this article, who has been here since March, 1890.

In the seventies quite a number of Catholic stone cutters and others were employed in the Queenston mountain quarries getting out stone for various public works—as the new Welland Canal. A little frame chapel was put up hastily on the brow of the hill over St. David's, and there 40 to 75 men assembled every second or third Sunday for the Holy Sacrifice. This continued till 1888, when the works shut down almost entirely, and the few families, not a dozen persons, who lived near there now attended Mass at Clifton, or have the services of a Carmelite priest from the Monastery at the Falls once a month.

In the year 1876 the Catholic people seemed unable to keep up a separate school. The furniture of the school was thereupon turned over to the public school board, and the old school house of no further use, is slowly feeding the elements. The old "glebe" house had become dry-rotten, and was replaced in '91 by a new frame two story structure, and the old church has been so repaired by outside help, from foundation to cross, that it bids fair to last another half century. It is well painted without; and within, well supplied with all the necessary and useful appointments. Its altars are finished plainly in white and gold, and two charming statues of the B. V. M. and St. Joseph look down serenely from their pedestals on the handful of worshipers left from old and better days.

St. Peter's Church,

COLUMBIA, LANCASTER CO., PA.

BY

FRANCIS X. REUSS.

Prior to the building of the old church in 1828, Catholics residing in Columbia desiring to hear Mass and attend to their religious duties were compelled to go to Lancaster, York, or Elizabethtown. Occasionally some priest traveling through from Conewago, or other place having a church, would stop over and celebrate Mass in a private house, when he also would baptize and visit the sick. The registers of such baptisms were of course recorded at the church at which such priest was stationed. The Catholic population was very small—not more than a dozen families, with perhaps some few unmarried persons.

These journeys of the laity to Lancaster were in many cases made on foot, and a ten or twelve mile walk over the rough Lancaster turnpike on Sunday morning before Mass, and another return journey after, was not unusual among those whose idea of duty made such efforts imperative. Some did not go oftener than once a month, and others fell into the habit of not going at all; hence in 1827 it was thought that there was great need of a chapel being built.

Rev. Bernard Keenan, then pastor at St. Mary's, Lancaster, interested himself in the matter, and in 1828 he issued a call for collections to be taken up for the purpose. This call is from from the old subscription book:

"The Roman Catholics of the Borough of Columbia (by the grace of God), having unanimously resolved to build a Roman Catholic Church in said place, and in order to enable them to proceed in so necessary and laudable an undertaking, are induced to solicit subscriptions from a generous and charitable public. As Roman Catholic Pastor of Lancaster County, I sanction and highly approve of the resolution adopted by the Congregation of the Borough of Columbia under my care, and likewise state that Messrs. George Ziegler, John Arms, John McMullen, and Dominick Eagle, who compose the committee for collecting subscriptions, are persons worthy of the highest confidence and trust, and capable of performing the duties reposed in them. Rev. Bernard Keenan, Lancaster City, 2nd March, 1828."

These gentlemen set to work and soon a lot was purchased on Lancaster turnpike which was later thought to be too far from the centre of the borough, for which reason another site was taken, which was finally built upon. The first lot chosen was used as a cemetery until the coming of Rev. James Russell, who bought another in 1879. The old cemetery, when I last saw it, was overgrown with weeds, almost hiding the tallest of the grave stones, and seemed to be the dumping ground for all the refuse—tin cans and rubbish. It was then (1887) in a truly deplorable condition, many having had removed their dead to the newer German Catholic and the later St. Peter's burying grounds. But the tombs of those still buried there were nearly concealed from view by the tangled briers and weeds. Here and there a fast decaying wooden cross or leaning stone was discernible, and an occasional small faded United States flag fluttered where it had been planted by the Grand Army of the Republic the preceding Decoration Day, to mark the spot where lay some one who had worn the blue in our late civil war. There is not another burying ground in the whole borough in so neglected a condition, and there seems to be no thought of reclaiming it.

The lots on which the church was built were near the corner that is now Second and Union streets. The contract was given to Israel Cooper, a Quaker. *The church was to be forty-five by thirty feet in size, "perfectly plain, and of brick, with no basement or cellar." This was in 1828. The corner stone was laid and the church dedicated on September 12th of the same year by Coadjutor Bishop F. P. Kennick, who, writing from York, Pa., to Bishop Conwell on that date, says:

"Columbia church was blessed this morning, and confirmation administered to above sixty persons.* Of course the confirmation could not have been at Columbia church, since the number of persons confirmed was too large; still the letter would lead one to believe so. There is no record of such confirmation at Columbia nor in Bishop Neumann's memoranda, and I am assured by old citizens that the whole Catholic population would not have been so large. The Bishop was making his visit of the diocese. He had come from Lancaster and gone directly to York. The letter includes other points in his route.

From the beginning Father Keenan attended the mission, coming about once a month to say Mass, and attend to the spiritual wants of the people. He was assisted in his mission work by the Rev. Francis X. Varin, S. J., who signed himself "Cooperator at Lancaster," and the earliest baptismal registers are signed by the latter, of whom we will speak later on.

The church, which is at present quite small, was originally but half the size, and the entrance to the grounds was from Union street. The lot which now forms the front of the grounds, and where the present entrance is, belonged to Robert B. Wright, Esq., and between Bishop Kenrick and Mr. Wright an exchange was made giving the church the present front lot, and Mr. Wright taking part of that which belonged to the church. This exchange was made through the generosity of Mr. Wright, without any money value being added by the church.

In 1845 Father Shorb built the pastoral house—a small brick building containing 5 rooms—in size about 15x35 feet. Adam Weaver, a Catholic, did the carpenter work. I append a bill in Weaver's writing in my possession.

SUNDAY SCHOOLS.

The Sunday School was held in the basement of the church until within recent years. Mr. Francis Ziegler was superintendent up to the time of his death in 1884. He also attended to all business for the church, such as taking pew rents, etc., since Mr. Henry Brimner's death. This Francis Ziegler was a very pious man, and greatly interested in church matters. He was for years an engineer on the Penn'a R. R., and my earliest recollection of him was in the Sunday School about 1856. He devoted the Sundays and many evenings to his labor of love, was a constant attendant at Mass and Vespers, and a gentle, good, Christian man. His family still live there. He was short in stature. Mr. Ziegler was born in Columbia, May 5th, 1820, died March 31st, 1884. He was a brother to John Ziegler and George Ziegler. The latter was killed by an explosion of his engine on the Pennsylvania Railroad in June, 1855.

Since 1872 the Sunday School has been held in the church under the auspices of the Sisters of Charity.

PAROCHIAL SCHOOLS.

There were early attempts at organizing a parochial school in the parish. The earliest record is a one page manuscript report of such school, which I have. It is without date or signature, but is probably, judging from the writing, an autograph of Father Shorb, and during his second pastorate here in 1851-53 it gives names of parents, number of children, amount due and paid, with a rebate allowed in some cases. I append a copy verb. et lit. The later schools are mentioned during the charge of Father Russell.

1828. Rev. Bernard Keenan supplied Columbia from St. Mary's church, Lancaster, at first once a month, but later, 1832–3, he is recorded as visiting twice a month. His first entry on the baptismal register is in 1831, so that Father Varin must have been the visiting priest until his removal in 1832.

Born in Tyrone, Ireland, about 1779, Father Keenan came to Philadelphia in 1820 with Bishop Conwell, who ordained him in January, 1821. He was sent to Lancaster in 1823. He said his first Mass at that place, Oct. 1st of that year. Mr. John

A. Hook was at that time an altar boy, and served this Mass. On the occasion of the golden jubilee, Oct. 1st, 1873, fifty years later, Mr. Hook served the jubilee Mass. Father Keenan died Monday, Feb. 19th, 1877, having remained all his days at St. Mary's, Lancaster.

1829. Rev. Francis X. Varin, who was Cooperator at Lancaster with Father Keenan, when the latter was in charge of the Columbia mission, made the first entries on the baptismal register.

In 1833–34 he was at Bohemia, Cecil Co., Md. 1838–9 he was at Goshenhoppen, Pa., where he died May 21st, 1840.

"Born at Schoenwalt, in Saxony, of a noble family. He was ordained in 1813 (at Dresden) (?) and arrived in the U. S. in June of the same year, and was for many years in Philadelphia. He died at the age of 62 years, 9 months."

1842. Rev. Daniel Kelly. This name appears on the baptismal records, although Father Keenan was still in charge of the mission. Evans, in his History of Lancaster Co., has him as first pastor. This is, however, doubtful. He certainly did not remain long. I have had all records of clergy appointments searched, and no record of him can be found. The only Daniel Kelly I find was one who was ordained in 1854, and died at St. Ann's Church, Philadelphia, March 30th, 1864. The ordaination shows that this could not have been the same. Of the antecedents of Father Kelly very little is known.The Catholic Directories of the years 1840–44 give no such name in the diocese. The V. Rev. Chancellor of this (Phila.) diocese, after a search, thinks that he may have been a transient priest. The records at Columbia first mention him on February 3rd, 1842, and Father Mackin was there in 1843. There is a record at York of his having been there in June, 1842, remaining until November of that year; so that he must have visited York at the same time. There was no church at the latter place in that year. (Records Diocese, Phila.) Considerable correspondence with the oldest priests in this and other dioceses fails to throw any light on this Father Kelly. An old parishioner tells me that he was "an Irish priest, little and stout;" another told me that he boarded with the family of Christian David. He was something of an orator, and someone recalls that he went into the missions of New Jersey, where he died. This may be, but I can find no record of it.

The Rev. Patrick A. Nugent appears on the baptismal record on June 11th, 1842, visiting at that time.

1843. Rev. John Patrick Mackin, second pastor, was born at Armagh, Ireland, in 1819. He studied at Maynooth College, came to America, and entered the Seminary of the diocese, and was ordained on December 24th, 1843, by Bp. Kenrick at St. John's church, Philadelphia. He was sent to Columbia, his first parish, where he remained about ten months. In 1844 he was at Haverford, Pa., and in 1845 he was sent to St. John's church, Trenton, where he remained for years, attending the missions of Bordentown, Bristol, Lambertville, etc. This church of St. John was burned, and the new church built on the site was called the Church of the Sacred Heart. Father Mackin was of a tall and commanding figure; in manner he was genial and pleasant, making friends easily. He went to Europe and the Holy Land for his health in 1872, having been prostrated by heat the preceding summer. He died at St. John's church, March 27th, 1873, aged 54 years. In his will he bequeathed $5,000 to Seton Hall College for the education of young priests from the parish of St. John, Trenton, and $5,000 to the parish schools. He was of good family, and only a short time before his death he received an inheritance. He was buried in a vault in front of the church, and was later removed to the interior.

1843. Rev. John Nep. Neumann, C. SS. R. The Catholic Directory of 1844 gives Columbia as being attended from St. James' church, Baltimore. At that time the Redemptorist Fathers were in charge there, being Fathers Czvitkovics (Superior), Sanderi, Glannoch, Fey, Alig and Neumann. The latter attended Columbia on occasions for a short time, until the coming of Father Shorb. On these occasions he stayed with the family of Christian David. This was told me by Bishop Neumann himself during a visit to Columbia, when he was arranging for the purchase of a lot of ground for the Holy Trinity (German) church at that place about 1859. (?) Father Neumann was born in Srachatic, in Bohemia, March 20th, 1811, studied at Budweis, arrived in New York, was ordained June 25th, 1836, by Bp. John Dubois of New York, entered the C. SS. R. in October, 1840, made superior of the Pittsburg house in 1844, became provincial of the Congregation in America in 1847, was consecrated 4th Bishop of Philadelphia, March 20th, 1852, by Abp. Kenrick of Baltimore, and died January, 1860.

1844. Rev. Basil A. Shorb was born in the vicinity of Littlestown, Adams Co., Pa., in 1810. He studied at Mt. St. Mary's College, Emmittsburg, and at the Philadelphia Diocesan Seminary, and was ordained in 1834. In 1839 he was attending missions in Ohio, where he continued for some time. In 1843 he was at Chambersburg, Pa., whence he was sent to Columbia, attending York once in two weeks. He remained until 1846, when he was sent to Reading, Pa., from where he attended Auburn, Albany Township, Wilkesbarre and other missions until April, 1851, when he returned to Columbia. He does not appear on the baptismal registers until May; but he reached Columbia, in April, 1851, and continued until June (?), 1853. He had some private income, and was very indifferent as to collecting moneys for his own salary. He was a plain, blunt man. Bishop Kenrick said of him that he was "an eccentric man, but a very good priest." He was the first secular priest appointed to take charge of the missions (until then attended by the Jesuits) of Conewago, St. Ignatius, in Buchanan Valley, Immaculate Conception, of Fairfield, and St. Francis, of Gettysburg. This was in November, 1858. In 1859 he founded the mission of St. Joseph, at Bonneauville, Adams Co., where he died and where he is buried.

1846. Rev. Michael Fox Martin, pastor. Father Martin was born at Beragh, Tyrone, Ireland, Oct. 24th, 1818, was ordained by Bishop Kenrick in St. John's church, Philadelphia, August 9th, 1846, and at once sent to Columbia, his first mission, from whence he supplied York, Pa., twice a month. He remained until 1849, when he was transferred to York, as pastor, where he stayed for about eight years. From thence he was sent to St. John's church, Philadelphia, as assistant, and in 1859 he was Chancellor of the Diocese. When the Civil War broke out he volunteered as Chaplain of the 69th Regt. Penna. Vols. We next find him at St. James' church, West Phila., where he succeeded Father O'Connor. He succeeded the lattter at Phœnixville, Pa., and at Schuylkill Falls, Phila., where they both died. Father Martin died January, 1884.

1849. Rev. Joseph Balfe, D. D. Dr. Balfe was born in Philadelphia, about 181–. He was ordained at Rome, June 9th, 1839, and came to Philadelphia to serve in this diocese, his first mission being at Pottsville, Pa. About 1840–1, he was teaching at the Seminary and visiting Haverford, Pa., and in 1842 he was at St. John's church, Phila. In 1843 he was at the Jesuit novitate at Frederick, Md. In 1844–5 he was professor of dogmatic theology and Hebrew at Georgetown College. In 1846–49, he was at St. Joseph's church, Philadelphia. About this time he left the Jesuits on account of ill health, and in 1849 he was sent to Columbia, where he stayed until February, 1851. His first entry on the baptismal register was April 15th, 1849. In the fall of 1860 he returned and remained until 1862–3, his first baptism dating November, 1860.

He died at the Theological Seminary of St. Charles Borromeo, where he was teaching, on September 3rd, 1881, and was buried in the family lot in the old Cathedral Cemetery. Dr. Balfe was a very learned man, reserved in his manner, very pious. He had one brother in the priesthood, Henry Balfe, who died at Lancaster, and two sisters in religious orders.

1850. The church was enlarged during the pastoral charge of Dr. Balfe, 1849-51, This enlargement was built by William Cowden, and the work proper cost $1,614.54 as per appended bill of Cowden, the original being in my collection of Columbia Church Mss. It contained an addition of twenty-one pews, in three rows, with a larger sanctuary, and a small sacristy. The back wall of the old Church was torn out, and there was a basement to it. This basement had an entrance from Union street, and another from the side yard of the church. This yard was reached by an ascent of twelve steps, the church standing on high ground. The balustrades or "bannisters" spoken of in Brimner's bill, were for the areaway enclosing these steps. I append also copies of bills for building confessional, sanctuary, railing, &c., some acknowledgements of payments, and orders over the signatures of the building committee, bills for altar ornaments and sanctuary ornaments. There is also a subscription list taken for the insurance on the property.

Dr. Balfe gave the first subscription toward payment of the enlargement of the church, the amount being fifty dollars.

The interior arrangements of the church consisted of two aisles with one central and two side rows of pews. On one side of the front or entrance door was the confessional, and on the other a stairway leading to a gallery used by the choir. The sanctuary had a wooden railing, the posts of which were made by Francis Sheideker, a wood turner, son-in law of Christian David. The altar was plain; on one side there was a sacristy and on the other a small room used for storing the sanctuary ornaments. In the sacristy stood a small altar, containing a series of drawers in which vestments were kept. The church was frescoed under Dr. Balfe during his second pastorate, and the central chandelier was put in by him also. The whole size of the lot, up till the time of the late purchase by Father Russell, was 100 feet front on Second street, by about 140 deep on Union street.

1851. The name of James C. McGinniss, or as he misleadingly signs it, looks more like T. C. McGinniss, appears on the records in March, 1851. The only name in the Directories from 1822 down to 1860 is that of James C. McGinniss, there being no T. C. McGinniss ever in the diocese. He was born at Tyholland, Co. Monahan, Ireland, in 1823, entered Philadelphia Diocesan Seminary in 1840, was ordained by Bp. Kenrick at St. John's church, Philadelphia, July 19th, 1847, and sent at once to St. Denis' church, Haverford, attending also Kellyville, where he built the church. In 1851 he was sent to Manayunk for a few months, to Columbia for a shorter time, then to Conshohocken, where he died September 21st, 1863. He is buried in front of the church.

1853. Rev. Sylvester Eagle supplies Columbia. Father Eagle was stationed at York, Pa., and was appointed to supply Columbia until a regular pastor was sent. His first entry on the baptismal records is dated July 10th, 1853, and he remained until November of the same year. He was a brother of Dominic Eagle (see bills of purchases for church). Father Eagle was born in 1827, at Maytown, Lancaster Co., Penna. He was ordained July 11th, 1852, by Bishop Neumann, at St. John's church, Philadelphia, and sent to York. He supplied Columbia until the coming of Rev. Aloysius Leitner, D. D., in November, 1853. He was a very handsome man, gentle, and much beloved wherever he was, very pious, and is known at York as the most economical priest ever stationed there.

He died at York on May 22nd, 1866, and was buried at the northeast end of St. Patrick's church. A marble slab marks the spot.

1853. Rev. Aloysius Leitner, D. D., pastor. He has signed his name variously Aloys, Aloysius and Louis, and he came to Columbia in November (?), probably in October, as I have promissory notes in his hand, dated November 15th, payable in six and twelve months, to Jacob Neustader of New York,* dealer in church vestments, etc., the amount being four hundred and twenty-five dollars, both signed "Louis" Leitner, pastor of St. Peter's church." His first entry on the baptismal record was in December. Dr. Leitner was of foreign birth and ordination. The earliest record of him in this country—available to the writer—was the fact of his being a professor at Mt. St. Mary's College, Emmittsburg, from 1846 to 1849. In 1850 he was at Wilmington, Del.; in 1851 at Burlington, N. J., and in 1852 at Chambersburg, Pa., from whence he came to Columbia.

*For set of vestments.

It was Dr. Leitner who beautified the grounds in front of the church. The old fence enclosing them had been built of pickets, but Dr. Leitner, who had an artistic eye, laid out the large space in beds of flowers. The embankment on which the church and house stood were rounded and planted with grass. There stood before the church on these banks tall Lombardy poplar trees. He had the old wooden fence torn away, and a brick wall built about two feet high by fifteen inches thick, topped with marble slabs on which a pretty iron railing was placed, having a double gate. Wide granite steps led up to the church from the paved walks bordered with boxwood and arbor vitae, and the whole was so well cultivated and planted with flowers as to be quite a pretty sight. The bills giving particulars as to costs for these improvements are all in my possession and have been copied for use in this sketch.

Dr. Leitner was quite a linguist, speaking Italian, French, Polish, and German. A German sermon preached by him to the Germans who were at that time (1856–60) agitating the separation which led (1860) to the building of the German church, was a model of its kind. His great opposition to the movement in favor of a German congregation was the cause of his removal, to which removal he was himself not opposed. He told Bishop Wood himself that if the German church was allowed to proceed he would not remain, which settled the whole matter in the mind of the Bishop, and he was relieved at once. He left the Diocese and entered the Jurisdiction of the Arch-diocese of Chicago, where he has been for years. At this writing (1892) he is stationed at Marytown, Wisconsin, Diocese of Milwaukee. Dr. Leitner was an accomplished musician, playing both organ and piano. Some compositions of his which I had in my possession were lost by accident. In person he was tall and slender, of dignified appearance, careful in his attire, an accomplished, refined talker, of easy going, good-natured disposition, generous to a fault. In complexion he was dark, having black wavy hair, and dark eyes. I served his Masses for five years during his stay in Columbia, and assisted him in packing his books, etc., when he left. A letter from him to myself dated De Kalb, July 23rd, 1883, contains the following: "* * * * You know that over twenty years have rolled by, and I am now an old man, having had a great many slights and troubles, and vexations, which you cannot know, as no other profession is subject to them as is ours.

LOUIS LEITNER, D. D."

Dr. Leitner left in 1860, and Dr. Balfe returned. I append a few bills for improvements to the grounds under Dr. Leitner.

1860. Rev. Joseph Balfe, D. D., returned in the latter part of October. His first baptism was in November. He remained until August, 1863. He was followed by Rev. Patrick Toner.

Rev. Patrick Toner, pastor, was ordained July 3rd, 1859, by Bishop Neumann at the church of the Assumption, Philadelphia. He was greatly interested in the church, and no pastor ever so won the affections of his people in so short a time. The church was always well filled, and money for any needed improvement was always easily collected. Indeed he grew as fond of his people as they did of him. His was a most pleasant and generous disposition, and his removal caused a heartfelt sorrow. A petition to the Bishop was in vain, and he went into the Diocese of Scranton. During his pastorate, his brother, Thomas Toner, ordained October 9th, 1863, by Bishop Wood in Philadelphia Cathedrial, said his first Mass at St. Peter's church. On the following Sunday, the writer, who at that time was an "altar boy," served that Mass. Father Thomas Toner died at Downington, Pa., August 10th, 1892.

Rev. Patrick Toner left Plymouth, Pa., where he was stationed, about May 1st, 1877, and went later to Europe, entering as a laborer in the African missions, lecturing, preaching, and collecting moneys over Italy, France and Spain. He is quite a linguist. Some five or six years later was made a Domestic Prelate to the Pope, with the title Rt. Rev. Monsignor. Since his investiture with the purple he has decided not to return to the American missions. Father Toner remained but a few months at Columbia, coming in August, 1863, and was succeeded in January, 1864, by Rev. Arthur McGinnis.

1864. Rev. Arthur McGinniss, pastor, appears first on the register in January of the year 1864. In fact he reached there about the middle of December. He was born in Armagh, Ireland, on September 29th, 1845, came to America in 1856, studied at St. Charles Borromeo's Seminary, Philadelphia, and was ordained in the Cathedral of that city by Bp. Wood on June 3rd, 1860. He was pastor at Gettysburg during the great battle, and attended the wounded of both armies. He was removed from Columbia in 1866 and died suddenly at Danville, Pa., on May 21st, 1873, aged 38 years. He was followed by Rev. James J. Russell.

Rev. James J. Russell, pastor, was appointed September 30th, 1866. He opened a parochial school, buying two private houses on Union street for that purpose, one of which was occupied by the Sisters of Charity. In 1874 he started a school at Wrightsville, and bought ground for a cemetery for that place.

In 1874 he purchased a considerable lot of ground adjoining St. Peter's, having thereon a pretty house. This property had a frontage on Second street of two hundred feet. He then tore down the little old pastoral house, removing into the newly bought house, covering the site of the old house and occupying some part of the old and new ground. He built St. Peter's Convent and academy for young ladies in 1878. The corner stone was laid by Bp. Shanahan on May 30th of that year, and on December 8th, 1879, both convent and chapel were consecrated. It is four stories high, having a mansard roof. E. F. Durang was the architect.

He left Columbia in 1884.

1866. Father Russell was ordained in St. Ann's Church, Philadelphia, by Bishop Wood, on July 28th, 1861.

Rev. M. J. O'Reilly was born September 27th, 1856, at St. Joseph, Susquehanna Co., Penna. His parents were Terence O'Reilly and Anastasia Donley. He went to Holy Cross College, Worcester, Mass., where he made his classical course. From there he went to St. Bonaventure's, Alleghany, N. Y. He studied philosophy and theology at Niagara University; was ordained by Bishop O'Hara on July 31st, 1879, in St. Peter's cathedral, Scranton, where he remained for a time as assistant. In October of that year he was transferred to Dushore, Sullivan co., where he remained for two years; from there to Danville, where he for nearly a year supplied that place during the time of Father McGovern's trip to the Holy Land (Sept., '81, to Aug., '82); from there he went to the Pro Cathedral (Harrisburg) until January, 1883, when he went to St. Columba's church, Bloomsburg, where he remained until June 10th, 1884. At this time he came to Columbia. In September, 1887, he was sent to Renovo. In May, 1888, he returned to Danville, where he is at this writing.

Father O'Reilly, on coming to Columbia, found the parish laboring under what was the most considerable debt it had ever known, for the purchase of a new cemetery, additional ground adjoining the old church property, with new pastoral house, and the building of the convent and academy. Statistics prove that when Father O'Reilly left Columbia, he had paid over twenty thousand dollars of the indebtedness. He left Columbia bearing with him the regrets and affections of the people.

He was succeeded by Father Igoe.

1887. Rev. James Igoe, pastor, came to Columbia in September, 1887. He was born in Ireland. Educated in Paris, France. Came to America in 1870, completing his studies at St. Charles' Seminary, Diocese of Philadelphia, remaining there about five years. Was ordained in 1875, in the Pro-Cathedral at Harrisburg, where he remained as assistant for the space of two years. About 1877 he was sent to Renovo, Pa., from whence he came to Columbia, in 1887. He died at Columbia, March 9th, 1888, aged 37 years, was buried March 6th in St. Peter's New cemetery.

Father Russell returned to Columbia where he died April 11th, 1893.

THE MISSAL.

The old Missal was used by the first clergy in the old church, (1829), and later came into my possession, and is now in the library of the American Catholic Historical Society. I in vain sought after the old wooden candlesticks used there, and made by Francis Sheidecker (a wood turner), son-in-law of Christian David (whose name appears in the first entry baptismal records.); the old metal cruets used at Mass, and the metal plates used for collecting the penny offering. They were there up till the time of Father Toner's coming, but have since been lost sight of.

THE BAPTISMAL AND OTHER RECORDS.

A letter from Bishop Shanahan, of Harrisburg, dated from the "Livingston House, Avon, N. J., August 22nd, 1886," to myself is as follows:

Mr. Francis X. Reuss,

Dear Sir:

Your letter has been forwarded to me here. I shall be pleased to have Father O'Reilly afford you every reasonable facility for obtaining such information from St. Peter's church records, Columbia, as may be in accordance with the objects you have in view.

Very respectfully.

J. F. Shanahan,

Bp. H'b'g.

This letter gave me access through the kindness of Rev. M. J. O'Reilly, then pastor to all available records and documents. I have not copied the baptisms further down than than those of Father Varin, since there are many yet living who expressed a desire to that effect. All other records and documents are given in full. The money transactions. Bills for purchases building and improving the church and grounds are all copied verbatim, from the original documents in my possession. The Baptismal Records are fairly well kept, though in some cases are unsigned, and fail to give names of sponsors. They are written in Latin and English. They will be published in full at some future time.

CONFIRMATIONS.

The Reeords of Confirmation are very incomplete. Some memoranda from the private note book of Bishop Neumann, which is in my collection, give dates of confirmations of which there are no records at the church. The Bishop gives these:

1838, September 11th, 30 persons.
1832, June 22nd, 6 persons.
1844, September 9th, 17 persons.
1846, July 6th, 26 persons.
1847, June 18th, 31 persons.
1849, June 5th, ————.
1850, May 12th, 24 persons.
1855, July 22nd, 32 persons.
1859, August 21st, 86 persons.

There are records of earlier confirmations. The first list of names of persons confirmed in 1830, September 12th (see reference in letter of Bp. Kenrick), may be the ceremony he speaks of, but it is not likely, as the number is not nearly so great.

*This ends Father Varin's registry,

1851 to 1863. Between 1851 and 1863, no records are found, although Confirmation was administered by Bishop Neumann, who was consecrated in 1852, and by Bishop Wood in 1861 or 1862, together with about one hundred others, but no record is found. (F. X. Reuss, 1886.)

THE CHOIR AND ORGAN.

The earliest choir consisted of several members of the congregation. No organ, string or wind instruments were used, Francis Sheidecker and Cornelius Fechter playing clarionets, and F. X. Ziegler and Edward Reuss at different times playing on the violoncello. Mary Hook, daughter of Joseph Hook, and later wife of William W. Fry, was one of the singers.

1850. On December 6th, 1850, Rev. Joseph Balfe purchased the organ which is yet in the church. A bill of H. Knauff, organ builder, Philadelphia, is among other documents in my possession, and gives details, viz.:

"To organ purchased, ...		$250.00
By Cash Recd. Dec. 6th, 1850, ...	$125.00
1852, Feb 5th. By Cash Recd. . . .	50.00
1853, " 2nd. " " " . . .	50.00	225.00
		$25.00

Recd. in full.

H. KNAUFF,
Per Francis Presner.

The separate receipts are also in my possession, one of which adds: "To 6 months' interest $3.75," and a letter from Knauff to Father Shorb, dated Jan. 6th, 1852, reminding him that the balance on the organ purchase was still due, notwithstanding the agreement was that it was to be paid in six months, and desiring an early settlement, and another letter to same priest, Dec. 16th, 1852, asking early payment.

A letter from Knauff to John A. Hook, dated Feb. 5th, 1852, acknowledges an order for fifty dollars payment on organ account, and a letter from Knauff to Father Shorb, dated Feb. 15th, 1853, in reply to one desiring Knauff to come to Columbia to put the organ in order, states that it is impossible to come, but that he would send Francis Presner, one of his workmen, who would put the organ in order, and whose receipt would "be good" for any payment made. There is a bill from H. McGrath, Phila, dated March 15th, 1851, to Rev. B. Shorb, for two Catholic choir books, $4.00. All the documents are in my possession.

1850 and '51. In 1850 and 1851 Herman W. Sartorius, whose receipts for payments I have, was organist at $50 per year. He stopped playing in the fall of 1851.

1852. Dr. Wm. Schneider was organist at the same salary (from receipts for salary in my possession).

1853. John Mozer writes an order on Father Shorb desiring him to pay to Anton Graub that part of his salary due for playing the organ on account for rent.*

In 1855–6 and later, Joseph C. Ziegler, tenor; Miss Kate Ziegler and Mrs. Ellen Herbert, sopranos, were among the choir.

1860 to 1866, Mrs. Herbert, Mrs. Ziegler and Mary J. Hook were sopranos; Lottie A. Hook, alto; Hindemeyer and B. C. Unseld, tenors; M. P. Cranston, F. X. Reuss, Bass; Andrew Zellers, organist.

The organ was a small pipe organ of 1 bank, 4 stops. It was about 5 feet wide, 8 feet high and 3 feet deep, and was supplied by bellows worked by foot or by an assistant. There were no pedal keys.

The early choir sang chant Masses and hymns; later they had Masses by Peters, Lederer, Concone, De Monte and Stocklin. Mozart's 12th was sung on one or two occasions in 186–; Zellers playing and Charles Zeitler directing.

Charles Zeitler (jeweler) also played the organ. Later he removed to Havre de Grace, but returned in the sixties, when he took interest in the choir again.

Andrew Zellers played the organ for years until his death, after which it was played by ladies—Miss M. J. Hook, Miss Emma Ziegler and others. This was in the seventies.

I have a Ms. "Tantum Ergo," by Charles Zeitler, which was used by him, and is signed and dated "Columbia." It is the organ score.

*This John Mozer was a convert, baptized by Father Shorb, 1852.

Mr. Ziegler was tall, and of slight build, was a good controversialist, and a prolific writer. His sketches of "Columbia in Auld Lang Syne" were published within recent years. He is one of the oldest living citizens of the borough, and still resides in the same homestead, where he has passed nearly fifty years of his life. In his earlier years he taught school in Columbia, but for perhaps forty-five years he has been agent for the Express companies, and in charge of the Western Union Telegraph.

John Ziegler, son of George Ziegler, was born Feb. 3rd, 1816, is still living. His name figures often in the business transactions of the old church. His children are: William, Joseph Ignatius, now a Jesuit priest in the province of Maryland, and two daughters, all living. Mr. Ziegler married Margaret Jenkins, July 29th, 1841. Mrs. Ziegler became a convert during a mission given in the Cathedral of Pittsburg, by Fathers Hewitt, Hecker, and Walworth, in 1857. She is still living.

Francis Ziegler, son of George Ziegler, grandson of Francis Othmar, born at Columbia May 5th, 1820, died March 31st, 1884 (see Sunday Schools).

Michael Hook—Hook, originally Huck—Hoke, came to America from Mayence about 1730, and settled in Lancaster, soon after the town was laid out. He was a wheelwright by trade. He was there married to a widow named Jane Thomas by a missionary priest.

Their children were: Ferdinand, married to Magdalen Lechler.
Anthony, married Mary Whitmore.
Andrew, married Mary Rosenberg,
Mary Frances, married Francis Othmar Ziegler.
Christina, married ——— Ginther.

David Hook was the son of Anthony Hook and was born in Philadelphia in 1790, married ——— Gallagher. He died in Lancaster in 1853.

John A. Hook was a son of David Hook, born in Lancaster in 1815, was married at Lancaster in 1845 to Mary Wolf, daughter of George Wolf, of Columbia. He died in Columbia in 1879. He was very active in the church and in business matters in Columbia.

John Arms came to Columbia from Reading. He was a tailor, married Barbara, daughter of Francis Othmar Ziegler, and shortly afterwards became a Catholic, and was an active member of the new church. He died 186—.
His children:
Francis, married ——— Haughey.
Julia, died unmarried.
Elizabeth, married John McLaughlin.
Mary Magdalen.
Joseph.
John Henry.

Henry Brimner came from Elizabethtown, Pa., to Columbia about the year 1822. He was a house carpenter, and for a few years carried on his business. He was then engaged by Israel Cooper, who built the church, as foreman. He was the architect of the old Town Hall in the borough, which was built in 1828. He became a convert in 1849 and was baptized by Rev. Jos. J. Balfe, D. D., at Columbia.

Mr. Brimner was a very well read and intelligent man, and was for a long time Justice of the Peace from 1843, and his son was Wm. Brimner (see Confirmations of June 22nd, 1842).

John Felix was born at Youtztown, about two miles from Elizabethtown, on the Falmouth turnpike. He was apprenticed to his uncle in York, Pa. (to learn watch-making), about 1838. In 1840 he lived on Second street, Columbia. He took great interest in church matters, was a quiet, easy going man, and a good mechanic. He died at Columbia.

LIST OF MARRIAGES AND BAPTISMS

REGISTERED AT

ST. JOSEPH'S CHURCH, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

BY

Rev. Robert Molyneux, S. J.

(Fourth Series.)

From 1771? to December, 1786.

At St. Joseph's Church, Philadelphia, is preserved the registry book of marriages and baptisms, that was kept by Rev. Robert Molyneux, of the Society of Jesus, and a companion of Rev. Ferdinand Farmer, a member of the same Society. These two Fathers kept separate books. Fr. Farmer's registers from 1771 to 1786 have been published by the American Catholic Historical Society. (For the Baptisms, see "Records", vol. I. pages 315–350, and vol. II. pages 225–275; and for the Marriages, vol. II. pages 290–315.) In the present volume appear the Molyneux registers for the same period.

In these registers, Fr. Molyneux's name appears six times—viz. (1) at the top of page one of the Marriage Register he has written his name—in Latin—thus, "Robertus Molyneux"; (2) at the top of page three (of the same,) he has put the following heading—in Latin—viz., "Catalogus Matrimoniorum | Coram Rob. Molyneux Missionario | Celebratorum juxta ritum praescriptum | inter"; that is, "A list of Marriages celebrated in the presence of Robert Molyneux, Missionary, according to prescribed rite between"—; and then follow the several entries; (3) on page four, he signs the marriage entry of Gregory Trahan and Margaret Bourke, as "Robertus Molyneux Miss. Apost.", Apostolic Missionary; (4) also the one that follows it, as "M. Apost."; (5) on page eight, the marriage entry of Joseph Robbins and Antoinette Gass as "Robertus Molyneux R. C. E. Pastor", that is, Pastor of the Roman Catholic Church; and finally (6) he subscribes the marriage that immediately follows the above as "Robert Molyneux Priest of the City of Philada."

The Register itself is a large folio measuring 8 inches in width and nearly 13 in length. From the lines that have been drawn up and down the several pages—in red ink, now much faded—it may be conjectured that the book was at first prepared as an account book. There are no cross-lines. Each leaf bears a rather peculiar water-mark—viz., a double concentric circle, surmounted by a crown royal, enclosing a lion rampant with a crown on its head, that grasps in its dexter paw a sheaf of grain bound with ribbon, and in its sinister, a staff, capped with what seems to be a broad brimmed hat with upturned edges.

At one end of this Register have been recorded the marriages; and at the other the baptisms. In the Baptismal Register the first leaves, with pages 1, 2 and 3, and the fifth leaf (pages 6–7) are missing; and the bottom of the leaf (pages 52-53) has been cut off and pieced with paper of different quality. With these three exceptions the Register is apparently entire, and in fairly good condition. Fortunately at the end of the Baptismal Register some one long ago, the handwriting is old style and the ink much faded, has indexed—in alphabetical order—the names of all the subjects of baptism that were recorded in the book. This index happily supplies us with the names of the parties—seventy-seven in number—whose baptisms were entered on the missing pages; and besides enables us by a comparison between the names there indexed and the entries on pages 52–53, to determine with certainty that at the bottom of the mutilated pages no baptism was entered. Of the 77 baptisms that are supplied by this index, fourteen are referred to page one; as many more to page two; sixteen to page three; fifteen to page six and eighteen to page seven. Now as the earliest entry o baptism, in the Register as we now have it, is dated "June 2, 1773", (see page 4,) and the baptisms for a given year take up only about one page, it is assumed, I think with good reason, that the first baptismal entry on the now missing page one, was of no later date than the year 1771. This year then may be put down at least approximately as the year when Fr. Molyneux opened his Register.*

In preparing these registers for publication, I have placed at the beginning of the baptismal entries, where they obviously belong, the baptisms that according to the index were recorded on the now missing first three pages, and, after Catharine Walker's baptism on January 31, 1774, (see page five in the original,) the other baptisms that the index tells were recorded on the now missing pages 6–7.

This index, that has been of so much value in completing the baptismal lists, evidently was made after Fr. Molyneux's day, or at least without his having revised it. This appears from many instances in which the spelling of family names, as given in the index, varies from the forms employed in the body of the Register. From this it is also assumed that the maker of the index was unacquainted with the parties he names. Thus for example, the name "Durney", the proper way of spelling it and the one used by Fr. Molyneux, has been indexed "Darney"; "Crouly", so he wrote it, as "Crowly"; again Jane or Joanna Foy's family name has been indexed twice, as "Foy" and "Toy", as if the indexer were in doubt as to which form to use.

In his Baptismal Register, Fr. Molyneux has rarely set down the date of administering the sacrament, contenting himself—it seems—with giving merely the birth day and year of the party baptized.

A word or so now in regard to the Marriage Register. Fr. Molyneux did not always record in proper order the marriages at which he assisted. Thus the very first marriage recorded in the book is dated "Aug. 4, 1774", (see page one;) while on page 3, the first marriage there is dated "Dec. 3. 1773", on which day Hugh Quigley married Mary Maddin, The last marriage in the book is dated December 25, 1786, when Edward Donoghy married Anna Crempchy.

*Some few years ago when this registry book was found, it was labeled as containing the "Marriages and Baptisms from 1773 to 1786". The first date, for reasons given above in the text, is believed to be an error, and should read 1771.

For reasons already set forth the date of the earliest baptism is believed to be 1771; and the last recorded gives the birth date of the party baptized as December 5, 1786.

With few exceptions—nineteen in all— the entries in the two Registers are, as far as one can judge, in Fr. Molyneux's hand. Of the 19, ten are among the baptisms for 1784, (see pages 40–41 in the MS.;) and the other nine among those for 1785, (see ibid., pages 46–47.) The hand writing of the first ten is not recognized; the others are in Fr. Farmer's hand.

From a study of the registers it appears that Fr. Molyneux officiated at all the marriages there recorded, and with few exceptions at all the baptisms.

In seven instances he has named another as the minister of this sacrament; thus, in the baptisms for 1774, it is recorded that Eleanor and Anna, (family name not given,) were baptized by "P. Carroll"; in the same for 1778, that William McDermott was baptized by a Protestant minister; in the same for 1782, that John Haines was baptized by an Anglican minister; in the same for 1785, that Elizabeth, (family name not given,) was baptized in Ireland, also by an Anglican minister - in the same for 1785, that Mary Nagel was baptized at sea by a Catholic layman and, in the same for 1786, that Antony Leckler was baptized by Rev. Francis Beeston.

As regards the "P. Carroll" referred to in the text, he very likely was the Rev. Antony Carroll, who, as we have seen in a former volume of the "Records", (see vol. 1, page 339,) was at St. Joseph's Church in 1774. The "P" before his name (in the Molyneux Register) I take to be merely an abbreviation of the Latin term—Pater, that is, Father.

The four baptisms by the laymen and by the non-Catholic ministers were held as valid by Fr. Molyneux; he merely supplying the ceremonies as prescribed by Ritual. By the way it would prove very interesting to learn where at this early period the Catholic missionaries got the Holy Oils, that are required in the administration of the sacraments. and that can be blessed only by a bishop. Did they send for them to Quebec in Canada? or to England? There was no bishop resident nearer at hand. And with such an immense tract of unbroken forest between the United Colonies and Canada, and of ocean between the same and Great Britain, how did the missionaries manage to obtain supplies? Can any one tell?

On page three of the Marriage Register, Fr. Molyneux records the marriage on July 28, 1779, of Joseph Ribaut and Mary Sennar with mention of their having been dispensed from the canonical impediment of affinity. In the Marriage Register of Fr. Ritter, (see "Records" vol. III., page 381,) I have noted the exercise of a similar power of dispensing from impediments. I would like here to inquire whether there is anywhere yet extant a copy of the canonical powers enjoyed by these early missionaries? It would be interesting indeed—and even useful—to learn just how far extended their jurisdiction; and whence did they obtain their "faculties"? from England? or from Rome?

In the earlier entries in his Marriage Registers, Fr. Molyneux now and then notes that the parties to the marriage had previously obtained a marriage license from the civil authorities; "Cum licentia Praesidis"—with the governor's leave—is the way he records it. This usage of the day corresponded to the permit that in our times has, in Pennsylvania as well as in some other States, to be issued by the County Courts.

In several places in the two registers Fr. Molyneux after a fashion of the day has jotted down various memoranda, that while in no manner pertinent to registers of sacramental acts, yet afford the reader many an interesting and really valuable glimpse into old-time customs and bits of local history.

I here copy these obiter scripta. (1) On page one of the Marriage Registers is the following—viz. "Mem. To speak to Mr. Cauffman to sign over a Warrant for the land in Pigeon Hills to Mr. Lewis—or to Mr"; and there he stops. The last three words have been crossed out. Of "Pigeon Hills", Mr. John T. Reily, in his "Conewago. A Collection of Catholic Local History," (Martinsburg, W. Va., 1885,) from which I condense the following, says that "Pigeon Hills" is in Oxford Township, about five miles north of Hannover, in Adams County Pa.; that the property, still known as the "Seminary Farm", consisted of about 273 acres, and that on April 4th, 1794, it was conveyed to Joseph Heront, for a thousand pounds, from whom it descended to the Sulpitian Fathers of Baltimore. Mr. Reily devotes about four pages of his "Conewago", (see pp. 84-88,) to a somewhat detailed account of this old missionary centre. Can this be the "Pigeon Hills" property that is referred to by Fr. Molyneux? Dr. Shea refers to "Pigeon Hills" in his "History of the Catholic Church in the United States", (see vol. II pp. 609-10, and p. 643;) while the "Memorial Volume of St. Mary's Seminary," (Baltimore, 1891,) has a brief mention of it at pages 16, 18, and 21; but Mr. Reily, (see "Conewago," as above, pp. 88-95,) treats quite at large of another old-time mission centre, which was formerly known, he says, as "Brandt's Chapel," or "Pigeon Hills", but now, (that is, in 1885,) as "Paradise." He places "Brandt's Chapel" in Paradise Township, in York County, Penna., about one mile north of Abbottstown. Apparently it is this latter named mission of Pigeon Hills that has been referred to in the memorandum in the Molyneux Register. The "Mr. Cauffman" (referred to in the memorandum) was probably a parishioner, and the "Mr. Lewis" (ibid.) was the Rev. John Lewis, superior of the Society of Jesus. (2) On the same page in the Register, and underneath the reference to "Pigeon Hills", has been written the name "M. M Dermot"; and, (3) about half an inch below it, what appears to be the record of a donation—viz. "Elizabeth Snyder—to the Church £1 s11 d8." (4) On the same page I find the following, apparently another donation—viz. "Rec[eive]d of M [the "M" was afterwards crossed out,] Rd. Ferd. Farmer, for the poor 518 Con", [the rest of this word has been torn off;] then, (5) on the line below, "given to Mrs. Hussey [or may be Hopey?] 70", without another word to explain the meaning of the entry. (6) Again on page 7, is nearly one half-page of subscriptions to the school; this was the school attached to St. Mary's Church. The several sums of money subscribed are, with two exceptions, put down under the heading of pounds, shillings and pence, and where the amounts have been paid, Fr. Molyneux has added, perhaps at a later date, the word paid in its abbreviated form "pd." Here is the list of subscriptions.

Below Owen Corrigan's name Fr. Molyneux wrote—"Sent home Catechism—", and afterwards crossed it out. (7) On page eleven, is given the place of residence of two parties: of "Patrick Monhollan" and of "Margaret Monhollan South Street."

In transcribing these registers, the Christian names, it should be observed, have been rendered according to their English equivalent. Thus Maria has been translated Mary, though, it is possible, the owner may have been known as Maria; Joanna has been left unchanged, yet it may have stood for Jane; Amata has been rendered Amy, and Jacobus as James.

In studying the old-time registers, one could not well fail to notice the frequency with which occur the now almost antiquated forms of Christian feminine names; such as the abstract terms of the virtues, as Charity, Unity, Temperance, Prudence, Grace, Patience, Letitia, (that is joy in English;) and the Biblical names of Esther, Rachel, Abigail, Phœbe, Susan or Susanna, Rebecca, Judith, Sara and Sarah, and Eva.

But with the family names and the proper names of places I have not ventured to take any liberty, but have copied them just as they are written in the original; though (as is manifest) the various spellings of sometimes one and the same name are unwarranted. If at times I have thought it proper to add something of my own, I have guarded such interpolation by square brackets. I subjoin an instance of what may be styled erratic spelling. (1) The family name of Nicholas Capple and his wife Mary, I have found in the registers written Capel and Copple; David Kapus and his wife Elizabeth are at times registered as Caplus and Capels; one will meet also the names of Elizabeth Kaples. I have also noticed Catharine Coppell and Mary Magdalen Capell. Here then, unless I be in error, are nine different ways of writing one and the same family name. (2) Another specimen of what I take to be orthographical errancy is the name of William Pee. This same William and his wife Elizabeth are registered also as Pay and Paye; while Luke Peay, seemingly a member of the same family, is set down twice as Pea.

Excepting a few cases, the godparents were, as required by church law, professors of the Catholic religion. But in five instances I have observed that Fr. Molyneux admitted non-Catholics to sponsorship—namely; (1) among the Baptisms for 1778, Sarah Drummond, a Protestant, is recorded as godmother for John Cullen; (2) in ditto for 1780, John Buck's godmother is put down as non-Catholic; (3) in ditto for 1784, Mary—, non-Catholic, stands for Elizabeth Stack; (4) in ditto for 1785, Chloe Forsyth, non-Catholic, is John Ryan's god mother; and (5) among the same, Anna Fleming, Mary McKean's godmother, is marked non-Catholic.

Another singular usage of those days was that of admitting more than two godparents at baptism. In Fr. Molyneux's Register, I have noticed seven instances where this was done namely: among the baptisms for 1776, (see "Matthias Roberts" and "Mary Crispin";) in ditto for 1778, (see "Mary Flood" and "Mary Walsh";) in ditto for 1781, (see "John Roach";) in ditto for 1782, (see "Elizabeth McClean", one of whose godparents seems to have been non-Catholic,) and, in ditto for 1784, (see "Mary McMurray".)

Another canonical oddity that deserves mention, (I have never met with a similar case,) is recorded among the baptisms for 1780. In this year, Fr. Molyneux at the baptism of George, son of James and Margaret Forrest, admitted two god-parents, both of them—and herein lies the singularity—being of the same sex—women, and both of different sex from their god-child.

In keeping his registers Fr. Molyneux adopted, or rather followed, the plan—common enough in his days—of employing abbreviations—either single letters, or parts of words—instead of writing in full such terms, as were more or less in common use. Thus in order to indicate that some one or other, whose name he writes, was of the Protestant religion, he uses the abbreviation "Prot." Its meaning is clear enough; so is "Presb", or Presbyterian; "Calv.", or Calvinist, another name for Presbyterian; "Ac.", or Acatholicus, the Latin form for one who is non-Catholic; "Luth." or Lutheran and "Angl.", or Anglican, that is Episcopalian. All these varieties are used by Fr. Molyneux, and even where he employs only a single letter, (always a capital,) the intepretation is—in most cases at least—easy enough. Thus the letter "P.", which he sometimes writes after one's name, means the same as "Prot.", or Protestant. So in order to indicate that one belonged to the Society of Friends, though Fr. Molyneux not unfrequently gives the whole word as "Quakera," "Quakerissa" and "Tremula," (used however by him only in the feminine gender,) he sometimes writes merely the letter "Q." But in none of these cases is there the least ambiguity. But what really may give rise to doubt as to just what was his meaning is his use of the capital letter "C." This letter is employed by him sometimes singly as "C"; sometimes in pairs as "CC."; sometimes in triplets as "C. CC.", and again in double pairs as "CC. CC." In its single form this letter "C", as is well known, is an abbreviation for Catholic, just as one "P" means that the party whose name it follows was Protestant. This single "C" is found sometimes after the father's, and sometimes after the mother's name. Its position determines which of the two was Catholic. Sometimes too it is met with after a sponsor's name. But the double "C", as "CC", is of ambiguous meaning. It may stand either for Catholici, or for conjuncti or conjuges; in the first instance the Latin signifying that the two parties—the father and mother of the child baptized—were members of the Catholic Church, and in the second that they were married. The two "C"s must mean either one thing or the other. Now Fr. Molyneux employs them in both senses; and in many cases, in fact very frequently, it cannot be determined in which sense he uses them. In the transcription of the Baptismal Register, a note will be found in such of the entries as may allow of a double meaning. But whenever the double "C"s are preceded, as frequently occurs, by another "C" as "C. CC."; or even by two "Cs" as "CC. CC.", then their meaning is perfectly clear, namely, when in triple form that the mother only was Catholic; (three "Cs" are never used except after the woman's—the mother's— name;) and also that she and the father were lawfully married; and when in double pairs, that both the man and the woman—the parents of the party baptized—were Catholics as well as husband and wife. The digression here may be allowed to observe that whether Fr. Molyneux, as he sometimes has done, prefixes a double "L" to the latter pair of "Cs", as "LL. CC", or omits it, there is no chance of one's mistaking his meaning. This double "L" signifies merely that the parties—the father and mother of the child—were lawfully married, legitimi in Latin. Their use is nothing else than a redundancy. I cannot say why he uses the expression, as the double "C" tells all that is needed. Fr. Molyneux was singularly lavish with his capital letters. In the transcripts many others will be noted and explained. But to return to the "C"s. In several instances, (I have counted five,) Fr. Molyneux has unaccountably and I believe very unnecessarily written down five "C"s—one after the father's name to denote that he was Catholic, and four—after the mother's name, as "CC. CC," meaning, as already has been explained that both the father and mother were Catholics and married. Thus on page 52 (of the original MS.) in the record of James McCarthy's baptism, it tells that he was "born of Charles McCarthy C, and Mary CC. CC." (see Baptisms for 1786.) Five "C"s have also been employed in the certificates of baptism of James Nowland, (see Baptism for 1778 ;) of Barnaby McCloskie, (see ibid.;) of Mary Cavenagh, (see ditto for 1780; (and of Eleanor Doulin (ibid.)

But this has been merely a digression. What then really is clear is that as long as Fr. Molyneux uses the "C" singly, in pairs, in triplets, in double pairs, or even in "blocks of five", the sense is plain; and that it is only his use of a double "C" that is apt to puzzle the reader.

The Baptismal Register discloses the fact of there having been many instances where either the father or the mother of the subject of baptism was non-Catholic. In the Baptismal Register the religion of the parents is ordinarily set down. In three baptisms only, if the count has been properly made, are both parents entered as non-Catholics, while in one hundred and thirty-eight (138) cases, are the parents marked as professing different religions. The baptisms recorded in the register number eight hundred and four (804.) In ninety-eight (98) cases out of the 138 was the mother non-Catholic, and in the other forty the father was non-Catholic.

Here is appended a table of the several religious beliefs, as given in Fr. Molyneux's Register.

The rite of baptism, as far as appears from Fr. Molyneux's Register, was with only a very few exceptions administered in the church, or chapel of St. Joseph's; and when administered elsewhere he makes due mention of this fact. Thus in 1774, the sacrament was administered "in platea Forensi", i. e. in the court (or market) house yard; in 1775, in "Bettering House,";* in the same year "in domo pauperum ', i. e. in the Poor House; in Middletown in Chester County; in Concord [by which very likely was meant the Wilcox mansion,] in Chester (now Delaware) County; and "in novo Sacello", i. e., in the new chapel, or church, of St. Mary's on Fourth Street, Philadelphia.

In the baptismal register are recorded nine cases of twin children. These are; (1) William and John Forrest, (see Baptisms for 1773;) (2) Catharine and Charity Popp, (see ditto for 1775;) (3) Francis Joseph and John Schmile, (see ditto for 1778;) (4) John and Mary Roche, (see ditto for 1779); (5) Mary and Barbara Sarfray, (see ditto for 1779;) (6) Joseph and Abraham Hainey, (see ditto for 1781;) (7) Michael and Mary

*"The Bettering House", as we learn from Scharf and Westcott's "History of Philadelphia", (Phila., 1884; vol. II., p. 1451,) was the alms—or poor-house, that was opened in October, 1767, on the lot bounded by Spruce, Pine, Tenth and Eleventh Streets. For further information relating to the "poor-house", see the same "History", (as above) vol. I. pp. 191, 205, 548; and vol. II. pp. 1450–1.

Kain, (see ditto for 1785;) (8) John and Elizabeth Noedler (see ditto for 1785;) (9) William and Thomas Sare, (see ditto for 1786.)

Sometimes, though happily of very rare occurrence, the parents of the children baptized were not always united in the bond of holy wedlock. In his Register of Baptisms Fr. Molyneux has duly noted such unhallowed unions. From it it appears that of the 804 baptisms—there recorded—only 13 were of children born of parents who had thus broken the laws of God and man. For obvious reasons the hateful epithet, that in the Register accompanies the record of these children's birth, has been omitted in the following transcripts·

The whole number of baptisms recorded in the Register, (including those that, as we find from the index, belonged to the missing pages,) is eight hundred and four (804), and of marriages—forty six (46.)

EARLY HISTORY OF ALLEGHENY COUNTY, PA.

BY

REV. A. A. LAMBING.

From the date of the arrival of the first white man at the confluence of the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers, the natural advantages of that section of country were recognized, and soon it began to be regarded as a future centre of population, industry and wealth. As time went on and the varied and inexhaustible mineral wealth of the surrounding country became gradually developed, it was seen with what singular generosity, nature had lavished her gifts upon that favored spot.

The importance of this section from a historical point of view is no less deserving of attention, and it falls more directly within the scope of this paper. Circumstances seemed from an early day to prepare it for the distinction it was afterwards to enjoy. Few sections of our vast country have been so distinguished by the vicissitudes that marked the various periods of their history, as Allegheny county, from the days when it was the battlefield and hunting ground of conflicting tribes of red men to the time in which it was finally settled, after having passed successively under the yoke of three nations of the pale faces—the French, the English and the Americans. Fitting then, it is that a county so distinguished for its favorable location, its vast mineral wealth, its restless and rapidly increasing population and its interesting history, should feel an honest pride and a pardonable ambition to make itself known. The past, the present and the future justify and demand it: the past, that it may not be forgotten; the present, that its advantages may be known and appreciated; and the future, that it may recall with becoming pride the "scenes of the days of other years," and may bless the memory of those who have gone before to their final rest. I cannot but feel myself happy in being able to contribute however trivial a share toward so deserving a work, by brushing the dust of time from a few early records, and exposing them once more to the light of day.

And first, of the name "Allegheny." It is derived, as all authorities agree, from the designation of an aboriginal tribe, the "Tallagawe," or "Allegewi," that inhabited the valley of the Allegheny river prior to the coming of tribes found there by the first white man. (History of Allegheny County, p. 2.). We are not, however, concerned with this prehistoric people, but it is interesting to note that only within the limits of Pennsylvania is the name "Allegheny" spelled as we are accustomed to see it. In New York it is "Alleghany," and in West Virginia it is "Allegany" while in Michigan we find "Allegan." (History of Venango County, p. 98.) I think it may be safely presumed that we are as capable of deciding the orthography of the name as either our northern or our southern neighbors.

To understand thoroughly the history of Allegheny county it will be advisable for us to go back to the foundation of the colony of Virginia; for, although this may appear superfluous to some persons, it is the only proper place to begin if we are to have an intelligent understanding of our subject. To begin, then. In March, 1584, Queen Elizabeth granted to her favorite, Sir Walter Raleigh a patent for a very large tract of land on the Atlantic seaboard of the New World; but whether it could be so construed as to embrace the territory of the present Allegheny county it would be impossible to determine, owing to the imperfect knowledge of the geography of the Western Continent then had, and the consequent indefinite terms of the patent. (Bancroft's United States, i, 75 et seq.) Be that as it may, and it is a matter of no great importance, a charter dated May 25, 1609, was granted by King

James I., to a company, at the head of which was the inveterate enemy and successful rival of Raleigh, Robert Cecil, Earl of Salisbury. Here it should be remarked, parenthetically, that these early dates are in the Old Style. That Allegheny county was embraced within the limits of this charter there can be no doubt; for the territory granted to the company extended two hundred miles to the north, and as many to the south of Old Point Comfort, "Up into the land throughout from sea to sea, west and northwest," as the charter expresses it. (Bancroft, i. 104, 105,) Owing to the still indefinite knowledge of America, the rapacity of adventurers and the desire of crowned heads to please their favorites without any expense to themselves, it is not to be wondered at that different charters were granted which conflicted with each other, and that the same lands were bestowed upon two or more persons or companies. One of the most notable instances of this is presented in the territory now under consideration; for while it was granted, as we have seen, to a company in 1609, it was afterward included in the charter granted by Charles II. to William Penn, dated Mar. 4, 1681, which constituted him sole proprietor of territories which extended westward five degrees from the Delaware river, from the beginning of the fortieth degree to the beginning of the forty third degree of north latitude. (Proud's Pennsylvauia, i, 172) But whatever may be said of the white claimants, the savages and wild animals were long the actual lords of the soil and they recked little as yet how their lands might be disposed of on paper by the potentates of the Old World.

It is not necessary to dwell on the changes through which the local government of Virginia passed from time to time, or the varying relations which the province sustained with the mother country during the period of her colonial history, suffice it to say that it continued to claim the territory embraced within the limits of southwestern Pennsylvania until that claim was formally and finally extinguished by an agreement between the two States, as we shall have occasion to remark further on. That portion of the colony of Virginia lying northwest of the mountains was at an early day divided into counties, as will be noted in its proper place, but no local government was established for the simple reason that, as yet, there were no inhabitants there to obey or transgress laws, except the Indians, and they possessed the happy faculty of settling disputes without having recourse to the tardy and expensive process of an action at law, but with results quite as effectual.

The expedition of the French under Captain Céleron down the Allegheny and Ohio Rivers in the summer and autumn of 1749 and the successful attempt of that nation to occupy the valley of these streams four years later, may be said to have inaugurated the historic period for the country around the forks of the Ohio. At that time there were four claimants to the territory: Pennsylvania, Virginia, the French and the Indians, each marked with its own peculiar characteristics. The apathy of the Pennsylvanians, the activity of the Virginians, the prompt determination of the French and the vacillation of the Indians presented a medley to which it would be difficult to find a parallel in the history of the New World; and while it imparted to the boundary dispute a reality which it had never before possessed, it showed the necessity of securing the territory from the Indians before disputing about its limits. The history of its brief occupation by the French is too well known to need recapitulation. The memorable 24th of November, 1758, saw in the smouldering ruins of Fort Duquesne the termination of French Ascendency in the valley of the rivers; the capitulation of Montreal, September 8, 1760, sounded the death knell of French rule in North America; and the Peace of Paris, concluded February 10th, 1763, fixed the seal upon its sepulchre The failure of the conspiracy of Pontiac, in the summer of the same year, put an end to all serious danger from the Indians, so far as the country on the east of the rivers was concerned, although incursions were made on the settlements from time to time for well nigh thirty years after, entailing loss of life and property; but they were nor characterized by the boldness of those of former times. But west of the rivers the Indians continued to defy the white men with almost their former intrepidity till their power was forever broken by Mad Anthony Wayne, in August, 1794.

The country was opened to permanent settlement of the sturdy pioneer; Pittsburg sprang into new life, and began to assume the garb of a town, a circumstance which imparted new life to the boundary dispute and demanded its final settlement. The very basis of permanent settlement of the lands, the title to them, was involved in it, yet each colony continued to give titles as if the territory belonged to it.

It is difficult to determine the exact boundaries of the subdivisions of the disputed territory made by Virginia, but it would appear to have been first included in Spottsylvania county, which was erected May 1st, 1721. In 1734 this county was divided, and the western portion of it became Orange county. Four years later Orange county was subdivided, and all that part of it west of the Blue Ridge was erected into Augusta county. The western part of this county became known as the District of West Augusta, but when or for what reason, I have not been able to ascertain, only that it was prior to September, 1776. In October of that year, the Legislature of Virginia passed an act to ascertain the boundary between Augusta county and the District of West Augusta, in the preamble of which it is declared that, among other tracts, "all the territory lying to the westward of the States of Maryland and Pennsylvania shall be deemed, and is hereby declared to be within the District of West Augusta,"—that is, Pennsylvania as Virginia then understood it. But by an act to take effect November 8th, of that year, 1776, the same district was subdivided into three counties—Youghioghania, Ohio and Monongalia—to the first of which the territory around the head waters of the Ohio River belonged. This division remained unchanged until the boundary dispute was finally settled. (Creigh's History of Washington County, pp. 11, 15.)

As regards Pennsylvania; as early as January 27th, 1750, Cumberland county, the sixth county of the colony, was erected, which embraced "all and singular the lands lying within the province of Pennsylvania, to the westward of the Susquehanna, and northward and westward of the county of York,"—to which the claim of the Indians had been extinguished. To this was added the purchase of 1758.

This entire territory did not, however, include any part of the present Allegheny county, all of which still remained the possession of the Indians. By the treaty of Fort Stanwix, situated at the present Rome, New York, with the Six Nations, which was concluded November 5th, 1768, the Indians ceded a large tract of country including all that part of Allegheny county lying to the east and south of the Allegheny and Ohio Rivers, which became for the time a part of Cumberland county. That county was, however, divided by the erection of Bedford county, March 9th, 1771, which included all the western and southwestern part of the province, purchased up to that time from the Indians; and consequently that part of Allegheny county secured by the purchase of 1768. A further subdivision of this vast territory was made by the erection of Westmoreland county, February 26th, 1773, which embraced all the western part of the colony east of the two rivers.

In the mean time Virginia was not an idle spectator of the action of Pennsylvania. This was amply shown by the disturbances created at Fort Pitt in 1774–5 by Dr. John Connelly, the pliant tool of Lord Dunmore, Governor of Virginia; which disturbances tended more than anything else to hasten the settlement of the long disputed question of the boundary between the two colonies. And here it will be proper briefly to review the controversy which exercised so important an influence in southwestern Pennsylvania during the most eventful period of its history.

The running of the well known Mason and Dixon's line was the settlement of the long and bitter dispute between the colonies of Maryland and Pennsylvania; but, although it exercised an influence on the Pennnylvania and Virginia boundary question, it decided nothing with regard to it. The latitude of Mason and Dixon's line is 39° 43′ 26″ north. But neither contestant was willing to accept it and its continuation as the correct boundary. The proprietaries of Pennsylvania claimed under the royal charter a territory three degrees of latitude in width; that is, "from the beginning of the fortieth degree of north latitude to the beginning of the three-and-fortieth degree of north latitude." They contended that the beginning of the first degree of north latitude is the equator, and the beginning of the second is at the end of the first degree of latitude; therefore that the beginning of the fortieth degree of north latitude is at the ending of the thirty-ninth, or thirty-nine degrees north. They, therefore, claimed as their boundary against Virginia, the parallel thirty-nine degrees north, which would have given Pennsylvania a strip 43′ 26″ in width south of Mason and Dixon's line, in that part west of the western boundary of Maryland. But, on the contrary, Virginia claimed that the boundary between the two States should be the parallel of forty degrees north latitude. This would have given Virginia a strip 16′ 34″ in width north of the present State boundary—as far east as the western line of Maryland. (History of Westmoreland Couuty pp. 121, 122.) From the location of this line it will be seen that it did not include Pittsburg, which is situated at 40° 26′ 34″ north latitude, although that colony continued to claim jurisdiction over the territory around the head waters of the Ohio. But let this suffice for the boundary question, which was finally settled as it now stands by deputies, who met at Baltimore, August 31st, 1779, It was ratified by the Virginia Legislature June 23d, 1780; and by the Assembly of Pennsylvania in September of the same year.

Returning to our subject; another division of the territory of western Pennsylvania was made by the erection of Westmoreland county, March 28th, 1781, which included within its limits the entire southwestern part of the State, with a portion, as we shall see, of the present Allegheny county.

The claim of the Indians to the soil of every part of Pennsylvania was extinguished by a second treaty, concluded at Fort Stanwix, October 23d, 1784; and the territory which lies north and west of the Allegheny and Ohio Rivers was added to Westmorelond county. And here it may not be out of place to remark, in passing, that in the study of our early history it is of great importance to bear in mind that almost every county, except in the southeastern portion of the State, has been subjected to various subdivisions, so much so, that a place which is in a certain county now may have been in half a dozen others before getting there. Allegheny county may be taken as a fair illustration of this.

Having gradually traced the history of this part of the State from the claim of the aborigines through those of France and Virginia to its present government; and through the counties of Cumberland, Bedford, Westmoreland and Washington, we are now prepared to treat more intelligently of the erection of Allegheny county, and the changes through which it passed till it was finally reduced to its present limits.

The slow but steady increase of population and the inconvenience of having the courts of law at so great a distance as Greensburg is from Pittsburg, the centre of population for this district, was the principal motive that induced the inhabitants to petition for the erection of a separate county. Their petition was favorably received by the General Assembly, as the following Act, passed September 24th, 1788, proves: (Law Book, No. 111, p. 412; Laws of Pennsylvania, vol. II, pp. 448–450.) "Act for the erection of certain parts at the counties of Westmoreland and Washington into a separate county. Section I. Whereas the inhabitants of those parts of the counties of Westmoreland and Washington which lie most convenient to the town of Pittsburg have, by petition, set forth that they have been long subject to many inconveniences from their being situated at so great a distance from the seat of judicature in their respective counties, and that they conceive their interest and happiness would be greatly promoted by being erected into a separate county, comprehending the town of Pittsburg; and as it appears that they should be relieved in the premises, and gratified in their reasonable request. Section II, 2. Be it enacted, and it is hereby enacted by the representatives of the freemen of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania in general assembly met, and by the authority of the same, that all those parts of the counties of Westmoreland and Washington lying within the limits and boundaries hereinafter described, shall be, and hereby are erected into a new county." Here the boundaries are described, which are the same as those of the county at present east of the Allegheny and Monongahela Rivers in that direction. The southern boundary, however, has been somewhat changed, as we shall see, while all the territory west of the Allegheny and north of the Ohio was included in the county, except the small tract on the shores of Lake Erie, of which mention will be made presently. Benjamin Franklin was at that time President of the supreme executive council of Pennsylvania, but owing to his very advanced age and his infirmities, the greater part of the business of the office devolved upon the Vice-President, Peter Muhlenberg.

The boundaries of the county were still further extended by the purchase from the United States of the triangular tract bordering on Lake Erie, consisting of 203,181 acres, which was effected March 3, 1792, for $151,640.25, and which tract was added to Allegheny county. The boundaries of the county had been still further extended by the addition of a considerable tract from the northern part of Washington county, which was authorized by an act bearing date September 17, 1789. (Laws of Pennsylvania, vol. 11. pp. 492, 493.), the first section of which declares that: Whereas, the inhabitants of that part of the county of Washington, which is included in the boundaries hereinafter mentioned, have by their petition represented to this house their remote situation from the seat of Justice, and prayed to be annexed to the county of Allegheny; and the prayer of the petitioners appearing just and reasonable," it is enacted by section second that the territory bounded by the following lines shall be included in Allegheny county, namely: "Beginning at the Ohio River, where the boundary line of the State crosses the said river; thence in a straight line to White's mill, on Raccoon Creek; thence by a straight line to Armstrong's mill, on Miller's run; and thence by a straight line to the Monongahela River, opposite the mouth of Perry's run." (Gazetteer of Pennsylvania, p. 10.) The fourth section of the act authorizes and directs Peter Kidd and John Beaver to survey and mark the line, for which they are to receive twenty-five shillings per day, "and no more", to be paid by Allegheny county. With this addition the county reached its maximum area.

It would be difficult to give an exact estimate of the population of the county at the date of its erection, for, though it was vast in extent and many pioneers had made it their home, yet the cabins were few and far between, and no census had as yet been attempted. Dr. Hildreth of Marietta, Ohio, who passed through Pittsburg in April 1788, thus describes the infant city: "Pittsburg then contained 400 or 500 inhabitants, several retail stores, and a small garrison of troops was kept in old Fort Pitt. The houses were chiefly built of logs, but now and then one had assumed the appearance of neatness and comfort. (Craig's History of Pittsburg, p. 206.)

The county having been erected, the next thing in order was the locating of the county seat and the erection of the necessary buildings. While Pittsburg would appear, on account of its population and growing importance to have been the proper place for the seat of Justice, the opposite side of the Allegheny was preferred from the fact that the State owned a large tract of land there, and the ground was less hilly than Pittsburg was at that time. And here it will be of advantage for us to go back a few years and inquire how the State came into possession of that tract. It was a part of the purchase of 1784, by which the claim of the Indians to the soil of our State was entirely extinguished. Says Hon. Judge Agnew: "The commonwealth having become the sovereign proprietor of all lands within the State, and intending and anticipating the purchase of the Indian title, provided by an Act of 12th March, 1783, for the appropriation of all that portion of the purchase of 1784 and 1785 north of the Ohio and west of the Allegheny River and Conewango creek by dividing the same into two large and separate sections. These were 1. For the redemption of the certificates of Depreciation given to the officers and soldiers of the Pennsylvania Line, in pursuance of an Act of 18th December, 1780. 2. In fulfillment of the promise of the State in a resolution of March 7th, 1780, to the officers and soldiers of the Pennsylvania Line to make them certain donations in lands according to their rank in the service." (Settlement and Land Titles in N. W. Penna. p. 17.) The Act divided the territory by a line drawn east and west from a point on the Allegheny River at the mouth of Mogulbotiton creek, by which, says Judge Agnew, Pince creek, which empties into the Allegheny five miles above Kittanning, most probably is meant. But this is an error, it is Mahoning creek, which empties into the Allegheny ten miles above Kittanning. (Denny's Military Journal pp. 115, 117, where he calls it Mohelboteetam.) In passing west the line ran about seven miles south of New Castle. It was the intention to extend it to the western boundary of the State, but as that boundary was not yet drawn, the survey was not carried further than the Beaver River.

The same Act reserved two tracts of three thousand acres to the State; one of which was at the mouth of the Beaver River and the other opposite Pittsburg on the north side of the Allegheny. The latter, in the terms af the Act, was to be surveyed "in an oblong of not less than one mile in depth from the Allegheny and Ohio Rivers, and extending up and down the said rivers from opposite Fort Pitt so far as may be necessary to include" the necssary requisite number of acres. (Agnew pp. 18 and 73.) "This reservation," says Judge Agnew, "was surveyed by Alexander M'Clean in the month of April, 1785, in pursuance of an order to make the survey before the other lands were surveyed. The northern boundary began on the right bank of the Ohio River, nearly opposite the mouth of Chartiers creek, and ran east 972 perches to a hickory tree, north 80 perches to a sassafras, east 192 perchas to a mulberry, north 26 perches to a post and a stone on the bank of Girty's run, thence down Girty's run several courses—in all 103 perches—to the Allegheny River. The two rivers constituted the remaining boundaries. (Agnew, p. 79.) The subjoined remarks of David Redick, "who was then a man of mark in Western Pennsylvania," will strike the inhabitants of the fair and flourishing sister city as amusing, to say the least. Writing to President Franklin under date of February 19th, 1788, he says—and I have retained his faulty orthography:—"On Tuesday last I went with several of the gentlemen to fix on the spot for laying out the town opposite, and at the same time took a general view of the track and finds it far inferior to our expectations, although I thought I had been no stranger to it. There is some pretty low ground on the rivers Ohio and Allegheny, but there is but a small portion of dry land which appears any way valuable, either for timber or soil; but especially for soil it abounds in high hills, deep hollows, almost inaccessible to a surveyor. I am of opinion that if the inhabitants of the moon are capable of receiving the same advantages from the earth which we do from their world, I say, if it be so, this same far-famed track of land would afford a variety of lunar spots, not unworthy the eye of a philosopher. I cannot think that ten-acre lots in such pitts and hills will profitably meet with purchasers, unless, like a pig in a poke, it be kept out of view." (Judge Agnew, pp. 210, 211.)

When by an Act dated September 11th, 1787, the lands of this reservation were exposed for sale it was decreed:—that the President or Vice-President in council shall reserve out of the lots of the said town for the use of the State so much land as they shall deem necessary for a court-house, gaol and market-house, for places of public worship and burying the dead, and within the said town one hundred acres for a common of pasture." (Agnew pp. 81, 82.) The eighth section of the Act for the erection of Allegheny county "directed the trustees of the county to purchase lots on the reserved tract opposite Pittsburg for a court-house and prison." But the region beyond the Allegheny River being then uninhabited and subject to Indian incursions, a supplement to this Act was passed April 13th, 1791, repealing so much of the Act as authorized the trustees therein named to erect a court-house and prison on any part of the reserved tract opposite the town of Pittsburg. Section second authorized and required "George Wallace, Devereux Smith William Elliott, Jacob Bausman and John Wilkins, or any three of them, to purchase and take assurance in the name of the commonwealth. for the use and benefit of the county of Allegheny, of some convenient piece of ground in the said town of Pittsburg, and thereupon to erect a court-house and prison, sufficient for the public purposes of the said county." The same Act authorized them to draw on the county commissioners for the necessary sum of money.

In the meantime the several county officers had been appointed and the organization of the local government perfected. But before treating of their installment it will be proper for us briefly to review the history of the administration of justice in this section of country prior to that time. And first of Virginia.

John, Earl of Dunmore, who was at that time governor of Virginia, first organized the courts of the West Augusta District December, 1774, at Fort Pitt, the name of which he changed to Fort Dunmore, in honor of himself. According to records which are still extant, the first court held there was convened Febrnary 21st, 1775, and the last, November 20th, of the year following. A ducking-stool for the district, it may be remarked, was erected at the confluence of the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers, February 22d, 1775, the day following the opening of the court. (History of Washington county, p. 18.) In the meantime a primitive court-house had been built at "Augusta Town," a prospective village, about two miles south of the present town of Washington, Pa., (History of Fayette county, p. 119.) After the erection of Youghioghania county, the seat of justice was again removed, the records of the court, which are still preserved, show that the first court of that county was held at Fort Dunmore, December 22d, 1776, and that the courts continued to be held there until August 25th, 1777. They were then held at the house of Andrew Heath for about two months, and after that time at the new court-house on the plantation of Andrew Heath, which was on the west side of the Monongahela, a short distance above and in sight of the present town of Elizabeth. (History of Fayette county, pp. 119, 120.) In his history of Washington county, Mr. Creigh gives the subjoined account of the selection of that site for the courthouse, and the erection of the buildings. I shall quote his exact words for the interesting picture they present of the manner in which business was transacted by our forefathers. He says: (pp. 15–18.) "the electors were required to meet on the 8th of December, 1775, at the house of Andrew Heath, on the Monongahela river, to choose the most convenient place for holding courts for the county of Youghioghenny. Notices of the election were to be given by the sheriff, ministers and rectors. The electors met at the appointed time, and selected the farm of Andrew Heath as the most convenient place. The court elected Thomas Samllman, John Canon and John Gibson, or any two of them to provide a house at the public expense for the use of holding the court, and that the sheriff contract with workmen to put the same in repair. On the 24th of June, 1778, the court ordered the unfortunate Colonel William Crawford and David Steward to lay out the prison bounds for the county of Youghiogheny, and make a report to the court."

On November 24th, Messrs. Kuykendall and Newall were authorized to contract with some person to junk and daub the court-house and provide locks and bars for the doors of the gaol, and to build an addition to the eastern end of the court-house and gaol sixteen feet square, one story high, with good, sufficient logs, a good cobber roof, a good outside chimney, with convenient seats for the court and the bar, with a sheriff's box, a good iron-pipe stove for the gaol-room, and that they have a pair of stocks, whipping-post and pilory erected in the court-yard.

The settlement of the boundary dispute soon after this time put an end to the jurisdiction of Virginia, and we shall, accordingly turn our attention to the courts of Pennsylvania.

The first court held under the authority of the government of Pennsylvania, in which the inhabitants of the western part of the state were interested, was convened at Bedford before the erection of Westmoreland county, on the 18th of April, 1771. Says Judge White of the Pittsburg bench: "The scattered settlers of the West were represented by George Wilson, William Crawford, Thomas Gist and Dorsey Pentecost, who were justices of the peace and judges of the court. The court divided the county into townships. Pitt township (including Pittsburg) embraced the greater part of the county of Allegheny, and portions of Beaver, Washington and Westmoreland, and fifty land owners, twenty tenants and thirteen single freemen. But with the erection of Westmorelond county two years later, jurisdiction over all the western part of ths State was transferred to it. The location of the county seat was effected in this manner; Five trustees were named in the Act of erection to locate the county buildings. Robert Hanna and Joseph Erwin were two of them. Hanna rented his house to Erwin to be kept as a tavern, and got the majority of the trustees to recommend his place—where a few other cabins were speedily erected and the place named Hannastown—for the county seat. Arthur St. Clair and a minority of the trustees recommended Pittsburg." (White, p. 3.) Hannastown stood on the old Forbes road about three miles northeast of Greensburg, and here it was that justice was first administered west of the mountains, April 6th—or, as other authorities will have it, April 13th, 1773, by William Crawford as president.

The town was burnt by the Indians July 13th, 1782, but the house of Hanna being adjacent to the fort, escaped, and the courts continued to be held there until October, 1786. After the burning of the town a commission was appointed to locate the county seat anew, which, after mature deliberation, fixed upon Greensburg, to which point Pittsburgers had now to turn for redress of grievances. Here the first court was held in January, 1787. (White, p. 3; Egle, History of Pennsylvania, pp. 1153–1160.) But with the erection of Allegheny county relief came to the inhabitants of the western part of the State, and to it we shall now direct our attention.

The first officer named for the new county was the prothonotary, James Bryson, who was elected September 25, 1788, the day after the erection of the county. On the 29th, James Jones was commissioned register for the granting of letters of administration and recording of deeds. He was at the same time appointed and commissioned a Justice of the Peace of the Court of Common Pleas. The next day General Richard Butler was chosen Lieutenant. October, George Wallace was appointed president of the Court of Quarter Sessions of the peace and of jail delivery and of the Orphans' Court. To his name, which is the only one mentioned in the Colonial Recorder, Judge White (p. 13) adds the names John Metzgar, Michael Hillman, Robert Richie, associates, who, he informs us, were Judges until the reorganization under the State Constitution of 1790. On the 21st of November of the same year, 1788, John Johnston and Abraham Kirkpatrick were appointed and commissioned Justices of the Peace and of the Court of Common Pleas. And at the same time Richard Butler and William Tilton were appointed Justices of the Court of Common Pleas. These appointments are taken from the Colonial Records of Pennsylvania. (vol. 16.)

The division of the county into townships for the better government of the increasing population was also a matter of the first importance, and early engaged the attention of court. On the 18th of December, 1788, the court, consisting of George Wallace, president, and Joseph Scott, John Johnston, and John Williams, Justices, divided the county into the following seven townships: namely, Moon, St. Clair, Mifflin, Elizabeth, Versailles, Plumb and Pitt; and their action was confirmed by the General Assembly, under Thomas Mifflin, president, September 4, 1789. Of equal importance was the division of the county into election districts. There having been only one at Pittsburg, a second and third were established by an Act of September 29, 1789. A fourth was made by an Act of September, 1791: (Laws of Penna. chapters 1444 and 1579.) John Griffin was made collector of excises for Allegheny and Westmoreland counties; but he declined to serve, and Robert Hunter was appointed in his stead, September 16, 1789. James Morrison was appointed sheriff and David Watson, coroner, October 30, of the same year. (Col. Rec. Penna. vol. 26, pp. 162—204.)

"The first court, quarter session," to quote again from Judge White, (p. 13) "was held December 16, 1788, by George Wallace, president, and Joseph Scott, John Wilkins and John Johnston, associates. A letter was read from Mr. Bradford, Attorney-General, appointing Robert Gilbraith, Esq., his deputy, who was sworn in, and on his motion the following persons were admitted as members of the bar, namely; Hugh H. Brackenridge, John Woods, James Ross, George Thomson, Alexander Addison, Daniel Bradford, James Carson, David St. Clair, and Michael Huffnagle, Esqs. The first term of the Common Pleas was held, as the brief minute states, before George Wallace and his associates, without naming them. The same minute is made for the June and September terms of that year.

The cause of education also early attracted the attention of the early settlers of the county, especially at Pittsburg, some of whose few inhabitants were even at that early day men of learning. The Pittsburg Academy was chartered in 1787; and became in 1819, the Western University. Another educator, the newspaper, found its first representative west of the mountains in our city, where "the Pittsburg Gazette" sprang into life July 29, 1786, to grow and flourish amid numerous rivals, as time went. A mail route was established between Pittsburg and Philadelphia in the fall of the same year; and a post office, another means for the diffusion of news and knowledge, was opened at Pittsburg in the course of that year, with John Scull, the editor of the Gazette, as first postmaster.

With the signal defeat of the Indians at the battle of the Maumee, by General Wayne, in August, 1794, their power was forever broken in Western Pennsylvania and beyond, and the country west of the rivers began to be rapidly settled. The necessity for further subdivisions of the vast territory embraced in Allegheny county became daily more apparent and an act was passed March 12, 1800, dividing it and forming from it Armstrong, Beaver, Butler, Crawford, Erie, Mercer, Venango and Warren counties, reducing it to its present limits and area of 750 square miles. (Laws of Penna., Chapter 2119.

It would be difficult to determine what was the exact population of the county after this reduction of its area, but the official returns place the number of taxables in the year 1800 at 4024, which would represent a population of about 20,000. Such was Allegheny at the beginning of the last decade of the past century; unimportant, it may be, though giving unmistakable signs of future wealth and greatness, signs which have been realized beyond the wildest dreams of the most sanguine.

A LIST OF CATHOLIC AND SEMI-CATHOLIC PERIODICALS PUBLISHED IN THE UNITED STATES FROM THE EARLIEST DATE DOWN TO THE CLOSE OF THE YEAR 1892.

PREPARED BY
REV. THOMAS C. MIDDLETON, D. D., O. S. A.

I. The term "periodicals" denotes publications that are issued only at stated and regular intervals as magazines and newspapers; these are known as "current literature"; while pieces of occasional appearance as pamphlets, prospectuses, posters, placards, hand-bills, fly-sheets and the like, are commonly styled "fugitive literature," or simply "fugitives".

In very many instances this two-fold class of contemporaneous literature has preserved the only record of events relating to the Catholic Church in the United States, a knowledge of which is in many cases of the greatest interest to the student and writer, and wholly indispensable to the specialist and statistician.

II. Let so much then be said for the value of periodicals and "fugitives" in general. But in addition to this, it may be observed not untruly, that in the pages of many of these old-time publications there has been preserved a mass —a jumble, if you choose, of literary odds and ends of all kinds, that are of the greatest aid in showing us the trend of the human thought and feeling of the day. Such are the reports that we meet therein of sermons and speeches by distinguished churchmen and laymen; the accounts of ordinations of the clergy, investings in the religious dress, of cornerstone layings, of churches, schools, asylums, hospitals and the like; the description of missions and of other public gatherings; obituary notices; devotional practices; advertisements of divers and varied forms, and book and trade lists.

To the casual reader—to the one who is in search of merely the chance to while away a leisure hour—such reading as has been described may appear somewhat stupid, and even uninteresting and wholly useless. But how often has it not been the case that men of letters, historical writers and students, have drawn eagerly from the pages of periodicals and "fugitives" for just such material as was needed to fill up the lacunae in their works? And, therefore, how welcome should not this flotsam and jetsam of literature as we may style it be to the scholar? Nor, it may be added, should it be forgotten that in the literary world, both in America and in Europe, there are societies of learned men who make it their especial business to gather and even re-publish such apparently unimportant and useless stuff as periodicals and "fugitives". In the book catalogues of Messrs. Quaritch, of London, and Rosenthal, of Munich, (not to mention other collectors of the same class,) may one frequently note for sale such collections, as parish-lists, visitation-acts of dioceses and parishes, minutes of ecclesiastical and lay chapters or meetings, rolls of officials in both church and state, besides almost any number of what are technically known as "locals" and "specials."

Nor must it be forgotten that with the approbation of the present far-seeing lover and patron of letters especially of historical studies—His present Holiness, Pope Leo XIII, (whom may the Lord long preserve in life!) the registers of accounts that were kept by the officers of the papal household at Avignon during the eventful fourteenth and fifteenth centuries, are now being given to the press for the first time. It is needless here to assert the value of these papal registers to historical students.

III. In a measure, too, periodicals and "fugitives" sometimes not undeservedly rank even superior to works of greater bulk and more pretentious appearance. For while these, (of course I do not class among them histories of acknowledged merit,) may be said to record the honest and well meant reflections of the writer, it too often happens that instead of describing facts as they really have occurred, he gives as facts his own personal and wholly subjective views together with all the biases and preconceived opinions of his mind. This kind of writing, however meritorious it may be as fiction, is neither historical nor scientific. But periodicals as monthlies, weeklies and dailies, and "fugitives," usually give the clean-cut and vivid impressions of those who were actually onlookers and witnesses of the events which they described.

For this reason they may not improperly be classed among original historical documents. At least, (it certainly will be admitted,) they are serviceable and valuable to the historian for the freshness of their reports, their minuteness of detail, their variety of news and the vividness of their accounts; and in the bibliography of Catholic Americana they assuredly deserve no ignoble place. In his Catholic bibliography the Rev. Father Finotti—is there no one to continue his work? —has distinctly recognized the value of this class of historical monuments that so often is apt to be undervalued, or even wholly overlooked by writers of the present day, and has given them especial and honorable mention in his work. *

IV. But this paper is concerned only with periodicals that relate to Catholic interests. Here no place can be found for so-called fugitive literature. The paper will give, as far as known to the compiler, the titles of all Catholic periodicals that have been published in the United States from the earliest down to the latest issued in the year 1892.

* See the "Bibliographia Catholica Americana: a list of works written by Catholic Authors and published in the United States, by Rev. Joseph M. Finotti. Part I. From 1784 to 1820 inclusive. New York: The Catholic Publication House, 9 Warren Street, 1872." The author's purpose to publish a second part of his "Bibliographia"—to embrace all Catholic publications from 1820 to date—unfortunately never was fulfilled. Should any one desire to continue the Reverend Father's work, he will find of the greatest aid the immense number of Catholic publications—books and periodicals, both old and new, which the American Catholic Historical Society, of Philadelphia, during the nine years of its existence, has succeeded in gathering and arranging for the benefit and use of scholars.

It will divide them into two principal groups or classes namely: (1) those that were published professedly in the interest of Catholics and of the Catholic religion, and (2) those that while not distinctively Catholic in purpose, were yet, in general tone, more or less in marked and close sympathy with the Faith. Of these some were devoted chiefly, if not wholly, to literary and scientific fields; others to secular and political movements, and another group, (it might almost be styled a third class, but here will be merged into the second,)is made up of periodicals whose destinies were linked in a certain broad though rather indefinite way with Catholic truths and Catholic scholarship. Their editors and chief writers were—some, if not all of them—professors of the Catholic Religion. Such for example were: "The Shamrock", a weekly newspaper, and "The Globe" a monthly, both published in New York, the first in 1815, and the other in 1819. "The Shamrock" was edited, and "The Globe" managed by Thomas O'Conor, father of the late Charles O'Conor, of New York, the distinguished lawyer and jurist. Of this class, too, was "The Emerald", issued in New York, in 1824, by John Mortimer, who subsequently, being joined by Thomas W. Clerke, published the paper under the title of "The Emerald and Globe", simultaneously in New York and Philadelphia. It seems to have ceased publication in 1826; then comes "The Irish Shield and Monthly Milesian", an "historic, literary and dramatic Journal", so runs its sub-title, that was conducted by George Pepper, and printed and published by Caleb Bartlett, at No. 76 Bowery, New York. The Shield subsequently was transferred to Philadelphia and published there as a semi-monthly.

In the following list the periodicals of the first group, accordingly as they were issued in either the general or special interests of Catholics, will be classified as "General"

"Society", "Devotional", "School" "Missionary", "Parish", "Temperance" "Literary", "Juvenile", "Colored", and "Indian"—that is, in the interests of Colored and Indian Catholics, "Eclectic", "Trade", "Philosophical", "Family", "Philanthropic", "Clerical", "Historical", etc.; while those periodicals that have been grouped in the second class will be found marked with an asterisk thus (*).

By the way I am somewhat uncertain whether "The Southern Journal", of New Orleans, should belong to this second class, or whether it should not more properly be omitted altogether from the list. Still as I have seen it named somewhere or other as a Catholic publication, I give it, though hesitatingly, a place with its neighbors.

Here I may be allowed to state that were there no other reasons for setting down the titles of these periodicals of the second class, the mere fact that thereby some, if not all, of them will thus be rescued from oblivion, and placed where they will serve the bibliographer to complete his list of semi-Catholic Americana, should, it seems, sufficiently justify the course which the compiler of this paper has taken in naming them. At any rate their silent and unobtrusive titles will not disturb their companions. For variety's sake, it may be added, I have inserted in my list the titles of two periodicals, both of which, as far as the mere name goes, appear to be wholly orthodox in character, and yet without the slightest doubt are to be classed among the wiliest foes of the Catholic Religion. These two masqueraders of the Faith are: (1) "The Catholic Herald and Weekly Register", that was published in Philadelphia, in 1822, and (2) "The Converted Catholic", (by the way is not every Catholic really a convert?,) that started in New York, in 1883, and is still, I believe, engaged in setting traps for the guileless. Of the former of these two papers, Fr. Finotti says, ("Bibliographia", p. 160,) that the first three numbers, the only ones he had seen, were promoters of schism and of a blasphemous tone in Catholic matters generally. The latter was founded, or is at least conducted by a renegade from the Church. I have added these two hybrids as curiosities of literary impudence. Their company will not harm them.

V. For the most part the data which make up the following list, have been drawn from a study of the periodicals themselves, and therefore may be looked on as authentic. Where these were wanting, I have gone—as a rule—to other trustworthy sources, as the Catholic Almanacs, or Directories, for the corresponding years, Dr. Shea's Histories, Finotti's "Bibliographia", and Rowell's and Ayer's "Newspaper Directories. In cases of doubt I have been careful to add the usual query mark to the entries—thus (?).

VI. It should be borne in mind that in this list the several titles of periodicals do not always indicate distinct and different publications. For instance, "The Catholic Intelligencer", published in Boston, in 1831, is nothing else but "The Jesuit", under another name, that was started there in 1829. So too "The Freeman's Journal", of New York, succeeded "The Catholic Register", of the same place, and merged the latter's title with its own.

It also has happened occasionally that a periodical on changing owners changed also its title. Thus "The Catholic Herald", of New York, which ceased publication about 1887, was formerly the "New England Catholic Herald," that was born in Lawrence, Mass., in 1880, traveled to Boston in 1883, and thence to New York, where it fell into the hands of the ungodly and perished. Sometimes too a fancy of the owner seems to have been the only reason for a change of title. In our own day, "Adam", that oddly named weekly of Memphis, Tenn., dropped its singular appellative for the longer one it now bears, viz., "The Catholic Journal of the New South." So too "The Western Catholic," of Chicago, became "The Western Catholic News;" and "The Golden State Catholic," of California, "The Western Witness."

VII. All these variations of title have been given so as the more easily to recall the several papers to the reader.

Periodicals that were pioneers in their respective forms were the following: "The Daily Telegraph," (that started in New York, in 1875,) was the first Catholic daily published in the English language; "The United States Catholic Miscellany," of Charleston, S. C., was the first Catholic weekly; it was first published in 1822; "The Metropolitan," of Baltimore, published and discontinued in 1830, was the first Catholic monthly, and "Brownson's Quarterly Review," of Boston, was the first Catholic quarterly.

VIII. This list has been drawn up according to the alphabetical order; first, of the States in the Union, and, secondly, of the cities, towns, or places, where the several periodicals were first published. Each page gives six columns of data, or statistics—namely: (1) the title of the periodical; (2) the language employed; (the different languages are nine in number—namely: English, Irish, French, German, Spanish, Italian, Portuguese, Bohemian and Dutch;) (3) its scope or character, as, general Catholic interests, parish, school, literary etc.; (4) its frequency of issue, as daily, weekly, etc.; (5) the place where it was first published, and (6) the date of its first and of its last appearance.

IX. The compiler of this list has not been blind to the many shortcomings—the defective data—in especially the last four columns of his tables.

All he pleads is that the task of gathering the many and varied items that will be found in the list, has been exceedingly arduous, (as will easily be apparent,) and that despite all his care, many omissions, perhaps even positive misstatements, have been unavoidable.*

He therefore solicits those, who may discover any errors or omissions, to make them known to him, so that should it

OF

ST. MARY'S CHURCH,

PHILADELPHIA,

1782—1811.

PHILADELPHIA:
Published by the American Catholic Historical Society, 1893.

MINUTE BOOK OF ST. MARY'S CHURCH, PHILADELPHIA, PA.

1782 to 1811.

[Compared with the original and edited by Lawrence F. Flick.]

St. Mary's Church, Philadelphia, was founded in 1762; at least the subscription for the building of the church was taken in that year. It was the first offshoot in Philadelphia from the little Catholic chapel, St. Joseph's, which was the first Catholic house of worship in the Eastern end of Pennsylvania. It is said that St. Joseph's was founded in 1732, thirty years prior to the founding of St. Mary's. Thirty years' growth of the Catholic Church in Philadelphia at that time really did not demand a second house of worship but only a larger one. St. Joseph's was merely a chapel then, and began to be too small to properly accommodate the Catholic population of the city. There was however no necessity for two Catholic Churches, nor did the Catholics of the city contemplate having two. They did not divide themselves into two congregations, but retained St. Joseph's as a chapel and started to erect a larger house of worship for a church. This accounts for the proximity of St. Mary's to St. Joseph's.

Whatever the arrangement for looking after the temporal affairs of the church may have been prior to the founding of St. Mary's, it is almost certain that from that time a Board of Managers, consisting of clergy and laymen, had charge of them. The minutes left by this Board of Managers or Trustees, as they were called after 1788, give us an interesting glimpse at the early history of the Catholic Church in Philadelphia.

In the archives of St. Mary's Church, there is among other things of rare interest a book which contains the minutes of the Board of Trustees from the date of incorporation, 1788, to 1811, the minutes of two meetings of the Board of Managers—1783 and 1788, and quite a number of interesting records. From some of the contents of the book it is evident that there was at least one older minute book and possibly two. The whereabouts of this or these is unfortunately not known at present.

The book is a leather-bound book, 10 x 15 inches in dimensions with 135 leaves between the covers. The leather binding was not the original binding as is evident from six new leaves, three at each end, and is further born testimony to by an inscription on the inside of the second new leaf at one end which reads as follows: "This book of minutes was rebound in May 1838. Inside of the cover of the old book of minutes was written 'I H S Josephus Hattaskey 1770 B Liber Josephi Hattaskey ex dono Dom: Georgii Slye 1770; James Campbell June 2. 1838". On the back-bone of the book have been stamped the word "minutes" at the lower end of the upper third; the words "St. Mary's Church", at the lower end of the middle third; and written in ink the words "1782 to 1811" at the upper end of the lower third. Both front and back covers have scroll ornamentations stamped in black on them.

The book is not paged and has entries at both ends in reversed positions. At one end the first entry is the act of incorporation in the handwriting of John Carrell, who was the first secretary under the Board of Trustees. At this end is also the inscription inserted by Mr. Campbell on the new fly-leaf, and the words on the back-bone read from left to right toward this end. At the other end the first entry is the "Articles agreed upon by the Catholic Congregation of the City of Philadelphia for conducting, in future, the affairs of the Catholic Church, called St. Mary's, together with the affairs of the Catholic School, &c, September 2d, 1782"—in the handwriting of Roger Flahavan, who was clerk to the Board of Managers at that time and who was subsequently secretary of the Board of Trustees from about 1791 to 1793. Under the circumstances it would of course be very difficult to determine which end of the book was used first and which ought therefore to be called the front of the book.

In order to give as correct an idea of the book as possible we will print the contents, in the exact order in which they occur in the book, beginning with that end of the book which contains the "Articles of agreement" and the minutes of the Managers for 1783 and 1788. The "Articles" begin at the top of the third page of the book, not counting the inserted leaves, and take up one and one-half page. At the top of the next succeeding page is written: "For the subscription toward building the church, apply to the old books." Underneath this sentence a line is drawn and then appear the "Subscriptions Received towards paying for the old School-house & Lot, purchas'd for Four hundred pounds Anno Domini 1781." This list takes up one page. Following this is a blank page and the next succeeding page is nearly taken up with a subscription list and accounts for building the new school-house. Again a blank page and then a little over six pages are devoted to the names of persons holding pews in 1782. Another blank page and then two pages, with one blank page intervening, are devoted to diagrams of the pews in the church and galleries at that time. These diagrams we reproduce in line engravings. Following these there are two pages—only half of each taken up—devoted to minutes of the Board of Managers in 1783 and 1788. At the top of the page next to the one succeeding these are entered the following words. "1786, December 8th, it was agreed upon by the managers, that the poor money shall in future be put into the hands of the clergy to be distributed by them". This is the last entry at this end of the book. Including the blank pages, of which there are seven, twenty-three pages are taken up at this end of the book and all of the writing is in the hand of Roger Flahavan.

The first entry at the other end of the book, as already stated, is the act of incorporation. It begins at the top of the first page and takes up nearly five pages, at the bottom of the last page of which are engraved the words: "TOTA PULCHRA ES MARIA". On the same page the name of Thomas Mifflin, where it is appended as the signature to the act, is also engrossed. Following this is the "list of Subscribers to the Burying Ground of St. Mary's Church situate on Fourth & fifth Streets," which likewise begins at the top of the page and takes up one and one-half pages. At the top of the next page begins "A list of the Subscribers to the building of St. Mary's Church, Anno Domini 1762." This takes up nearly four pages. Underneath the figures "62" some one has written in lead pencil "58". A blank page intervenes and then, beginning at the top of the page, comes "Subscriptions received towards building additional pews and Gallerys in the church & for improving & ornamenting it &c Anno Domini 1782". This takes up a little less than two pages. A blank page again follows and then, again beginning at the top of the page, comes the "Rules for conducting the temporal business of the Catholic Church called St. Mary's and for tne government of the Schools thereto belonging; established by the Trustees appointed under the Act of Assembly for Incorporating the members of the said Church". These take up two and a half pages. A double line is drawn underneath the heading and each rule is numbered in Arabic numerals. About one-half of rule 13 and all of rule 14 have been crossed out by a very heavy black line. An amendment to rule 6 is appended in another handwriting, namely that of John O'Hara, and a foot note is given referring to the meeting at which it was adopted. A blank page follows these rules and then, at the top of the twentieth page from the beginning of this end of the book, commence the minutes of the Board of Trustees. All of the entries at this end of the book, preceding the minutes, are in the handwriting of John Carrell. One hundred and seventy-nine consecutive pages are given to these minutes, bringing them down to 1811. Following these minutes or rather between the contents of the two ends of the book there are thirty seven blank pages.

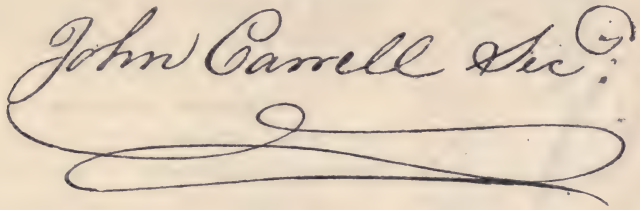
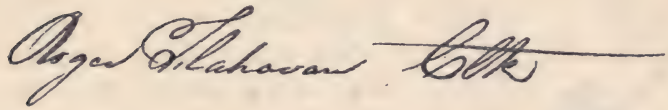
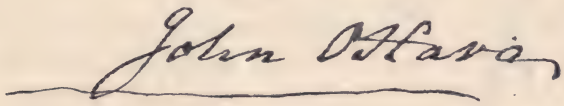
During the period which the book covers there was one clerk and six secretaries. The clerk was the same person as one of the secretaries, so that we have the handwriting of six secretaries in the book. The clerk was Roger Flahavan and the secretaries were, in the order in which they served, John Carrell, Roger Flahavan, John O'Hara, John Denniston, Joseph Snyder, and Thomas Maitland. The minutes of April 20, 1802 and April 25, 1802, which were kept during the secretaryship of John O'Hara, look as though they might have been written in by some one else in imitation of John O'Hara's hand.







Throughout the rest of the book there is no great difficulty in definitely determining the handwriting, although there is sufficient similarity between that of Roger Flahavan and John O'Hara, to make them be taken one for the other on superficial examination. The minutes from September, 1789, to April 26th, 1791, are in the handwriting of Roger Flahavan, although John Carrell was secretary at the time.

The book is in a fairly good state of preservation. A good many of the leaves, at that end of the book which begins with the act of incorporation, are badly worn and a few are torn. Such words and letters, as have been torn out and have to be supplied, will be put in brackets. The act of incorporation is in printed form in our library and the words that are supplied are taken from the printed copy.

Any suspected interpolation will be called attention to in brackets throughout the text. It may be well to say here that everything which appears between brackets is from the Editor, while whatever appears in parenthesis is part of the text.

The minute book is ordinarily kept in the archives of St. Mary's Church where it is securely lodged in a fire-proof in the custody of Rev. Father McDermott, the pastor.

It is to the courtesy of Father McDermott that American Catholics owe the publication of these interesting documents.

We give line engravings of the signatures of the secretaries, of a group of trustees who headed the subscription list for enlarging and improving the church and of diagrams the pews in the old church. The signatures are full size while the diagrams are reduced.

This Book of Minutes was rebound in May, 1838.
Inside of the cover of the old book of Minutes was written

"I H S

The Last Will and Testament of Peter Gill Pennsylvania St.

In the name of God, Amen, I Peter Gill of the district of Southwark in Phila. a Citizen of the United States, being in a low state of health, but of sound mind and senses, calling to mind the mortality of my body, and the uncertainty of the time of my departure from this life; have thought fit for the timely regulation of my temporal affairs to make this my last will & testtament in the manner following, Viz. 1st After recommending my soul to God, its Creator, I bequeath my body to the Earth, to be interred in St Mary's Churchyard by my Executors to be mentioned hereafter, 2ndly I leave my two lots in Newbury Heidlelburg township to be disposed of by the superior of the Clergy of St. Mary's Church in Philadelphia for the time being, in the manner he shall judge most suitable for the honour of God, and the benefit of the holy Catholick religion; To which purpose I hereby grant him full power and title. 3rdly I leave to the Trustees forming the body corporate of St. Mary's Church in Philadelphia, the remainder of my estate both real and personal to be managed and appropriated to the different uses and purposes, as shall hereafter be mentioned, Viz. 1'o. My Will is that at my death, my Executors pay unto Mary Reily my housekeeper, two hundred dollars, and that she be allowed to take for herself, whatever part of ["The" crossed out here] my household furniture or chattels she may think fit, without yielding or paying anything therefore, and that she be allowed the full use and possession of my house in Plumb street between second and third streets during her natural life, unless she should at any time choose to be removed to any more convenient place, in which supposition, she must be fully provided with every means necessary to accomplish her desire, and must there be taken the same care of by the body corporate of St. Mary's Church as I myself might expect or have aright to, were I living and possest of all the property I now hold—

Furthermore

Furthermore, should the said Mary Reily at any time during her natural life, stand in need of any further supply of money in the judgment of the Clergy of St. Mary's for the time being, my will is, that the body corporate of St Mary's Church furnish her with the same. 2ndly, My will is, that my house and lot in Camp town on third street be rented out to the best advantage, and that one half of said rent be annually put into the hands of the superior of the Clergy of St. Mary's Church in Philadelphia to be disposed of by him in the manner following, Viz. One part to such poor, as he shall judge most [Here the word "advantageous" has been crossed out] deserving, and the other part to whatever purpose he shall judge most advantageous to the repose of my soul, the other half of the rent shall be reserved to pay the ground rent, to repair the buildings, and to make improvements on said lots. 3rdly. My will is that my house and lot on third street near the corner of Shippen Street in Southwark be also rented to the best advantage, and that one half of said rent be annually applied to the free school of St. Mary's Church, and the other half to be reserved for the necessary repairs, charges, and improvements both of the said lot and also of my lot and house in Plumb street whilst occupied by Mary Reily. 4thly My Will is that my house and lot in Plumb street, at the decease of Mary Reily, or on her quitting the same, be rented to the best advantage and that the said rent be applied to the use of St. Mary's Church 5thly My Will is that the three last mentioned lots with their respective buildings, [l]eft in the management of the body corporate of St. Mary's Church for the purposes already mentioned respectively, be for ever applied to those said purposes and that they be not sold for thirty years from my death, but that they be retained during that space of time as monuments of my memory–But should it be deemed expedient after the expiration of the above specified time to sell and dispose of the same or any of them, let it be remembered that the issues or neat proceeds of such sale or sales be funded or so disposed of, as annually for ever to answer solely the purposes abovementioned respectively.

The

The reason why I have disposed of my property in the manner above mentioned, is because having no Children, and having never been assisted by any, calling themselves my relations in the acquisition of said property, I have thought it fit and just so to do. Finally I hereby constitute, appoint and nominate for executors of this my last Will and Testament, my beloved and faithful friends John Murphy, Peter Scravendyke and Thomas Farrell all of Philadelphia, signed with my my hand and sealed with my seal this 23d. day of December in the Year of our Lord, One thonsand seven hundred and ninety seven.

Declared to be my last Will and testament in the presence of the annexed Evidence, whom I requested to attend for that purpose,

To The Pewholders of St. Mary's Church

The Trustees having a common interest with all the Members, in what contributes to the welfare of the church, the promotion of piety, and the dignity of our divine worship, have lately turned their attention to the vocal music of the choir; and have the satisfaction to observe it in a state of improvement very gratifying. But to render it more perfect, it is necessary to have a better Organ, the old one having been for some time past in such a state of decay, that it required frequent repairs, and could not much longer have answered the purpose. Ten years ago, a Subscription was opened for to procure one from Europe, but some circumstances induced its postponement; a favourable opportunity now offering of procuring one here, the Trustees have thought it most advisable to avail themselves of it, and have accordingly contracted with Mr Taws for one, to be compleated before Christmass next, at the price of Two thousand five hundred Dollars, to be paid in half yearly payments of four hundred Dollars, until the whole is paid. Although the income of the property belonging to the Church, in the hands of the Trustees, did not warrant them in the purchase yet from the necessity of the measure, and the terms of payment being accommodating, they anticipate the approbation of their Catholic Brethern, upon whose liberality they rely for the accomplishment thereof; but in appealing thus to their (well known) liberality in supporting their Church, they have thought it most just and equitable to raise the money from the Pews, and have levied the following sums on them, viz The Pews that now Pay ten Dollars to the Clergy, to pay the additional sum of Six Dollars,—and those that pay eight dollars, to pay the additional sum of four dollars a year, to be paid half yearly, on the 24th day of June, and 8th day of december; which sums are to be appropriated to this particular purpose, and will pay the amount requisite in four years; It may perhaps be urged by some, that there is no necessity of resorting to this mode of raising the money, as it might be done by subscription; or that the Church has sufficient income to answer the purpose. To this we answer, that subscriptions, are very uncertain, and unequal in their operations, as the burden falls upon the liberal though not generally the most wealthy part of the congregation; and as to the income of the Church, it is wholly inadequate to this expence, being as yet barely sufficient for the current expences of each year, as a reference to last year's account current will shew; the reason for this is, the property when bequeathed to the Church was in such a state, as has rendered it necessary to have had a great deal of repairs made, to make it tenantable,

It is also to be regretted, that the support of the Free School has so much diminished of late, as to render it necessary to be in advance to that valuable Institution, otherwise it must cease, which would certainly be deplorable, and an everlasting reproach to the Catholics of St. Mary's. it is now indebted to the Church nearly two hundred dollars, and no prospect of repayment, unless by their beneficence on an occasion that will soon offer.

In order to have it understood that the advance on the Pews is not intended (by the present Trustees) to continue longer than to meet this demand, the Pewholders have it at their option to pay the whole four years rise, in advance, or in half yearly payments, as it may best suit them.

As the improvement of our church music, ought to engage the attention of every member, as it constitutes a very essential, and solemn part of our divine worship, we earnestly hope for their cheerful co-operation therein.

On Motion of Mr Ryan, Resolved that a Subscription paper be opened for the purpose of contributing to pay for the new organ, the following was agreed to, viz

To Catholics, who are not pewholders in St Mary's Church

In consequence of the decayed state of the old organ of St Mary's, the Congregation have been under the necessity of contracting for a new one, which is to cost 2500 Dollars; as the dignity of the Catholic worship requires a corresponding Grandeur of accompaniment; it is expected that this Instrument will contribute much to that effect; Ten years ago a Subscription was opened for the purpose of procuring an Organ, but from some cause the business was postponed: it is now earnestly hoped that the friends of piety will avail themselves of this opportunity in contributing towards the means of giving that dignity to Divine worship that is due.

to

The Rev Mr W. V. Harold, presented an address to the Pew Holders of St Marys Church, for which purpose he was appointed on the 15th Instant, which was read and approved of and is as follows

TO THE PEW HOLDERS OF ST MARYS CHURCH

Appointed, by your confidence, to the Temporal administration of our common Church, we feel it our first duty to promote the decency of public worship by a Judicious application of the property committed by you to our management. At a period when our numbers were comparatively small the piety and public spirit of our ancestors devoted the returns of their industry to the erection of this Church, and left us at once a monument of their religion a strong claim on our grateful remembrance and an encouragement to imitation. In order to accomodate our increasing numbers, an enlargement of the Church has been deemed expedient and a Subscription opened for that purpose, could this plan have been carried into operation by the ordinary resources of the Church you will do us the Justice to believe that we should have declined this mode of application, but you cannot be ignorant that our funds are unequal to such an Undertaking, and we have every reason to be convinced, that with means more ample, you possess a Spirit not less generous then those who have gone before you, we think it proper to inform you, that, by the improvement which your co-operation will enable us to make, Thirty-six Pews will be added to the Church; and that a choice in the purchase of these will be given to the Subscribers proportioned to their contribution, whilst we address you specially and with Just reliance, as Pew holders in the Church, we do not forego a well founded hope of liberal assistance from our

Our brethern and fellow citizens in Philadelphia, who have never yet withheld their support from the promotion of any object so nearly connected with their Religion, We take this opportnnity of expressing our grateful acknowledgements to the ladies who have contributed so largely to the decoration of our Altar
